

Police Department Was Organized '91, Kiwanis And Police Meet Jointly

Judge C. D. B. Hasbrouck, City Historian, Gives History at Celebration Banquet on Thursday Evening.

OFFICIALS PRESENT

John E. Kraft, Who Was Mayor When Police Were First Organized Here, Is Honor Guest.

Kingston's police department was organized May 15, 1891, during the administration of John E. Kraft as mayor of the city, and the forty-third anniversary of the department was appropriately celebrated Thursday evening with a joint dinner meeting of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association and the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel when a brief history of the department was given by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, city historian, who was serving the city as corporation counsel at the time the department came into existence. Former Mayor Kraft was the guest of honor at the dinner. Other guests present were Mayor C. J. Heiselman, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, former Corporation Counsel Harry H. Flemming, and Chief of Police J. Allan Wood.

Alderman Paul Zucca, song leader of Kiwanis, led in the singing of songs during the evening and called upon a sextette of Kiwanis to sing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," which was followed by a sextette of policemen in the same selection. A quartet composed of Mayor Heiselman, Senator Wicks, Assemblyman Conway and Peter Keresman, members of the Patrolmen's Association, "brought down the house" with its rendition of that old favorite.

The attendance prizes were won by Policemen Wesley Cramer and Kiwanian Harry S. Ensign.

Keresman Speaks

Following the serving of a chicken dinner, Harry Hasbrouck, president of the Kiwanis Club, presided and called on President Keresman for a few words. Officer Keresman spoke briefly saying that he knew the police force of today would continue to maintain the standard established by the force during the past 43 years, and expressed the hope that the police force would continue to maintain the confidence of the public. In behalf of the members of the Patrolmen's Association he again renewed the policeman's pledge of loyalty to duty.

Mayor Heiselman said that Kingston has one of the best police forces of any city of its size in the state. He called attention to the fact that the criminal element of today was made up of young men ranging in age from 20 to 22 years, and that something should be done to take care of the boys of the city so that they would grow up to be useful and respected citizens. He said for some time he had been considering supervised playgrounds in the city during the school vacation months of July and August as a TERA project. It would require the expenditure of $2,500 and there was no money in the city budget for that purpose. That was the reason he had contemplated having it set up as a relief project, but in talking the matter over with the local TERA committee they had expressed the opinion that in so many of the present time it would not be fair to use the money for supervised play. He said that he hoped that interested citizens would be able to devise some plan for carrying out the project. The mayor called attention to the fine new Municipal Auditorium which he believed should be used more than it was. He said it was not intended merely for the holding of balls and dances but should be used also for activities of varied kinds among the younger people of the city.

Destroyer's Visit

Roger H. Loughran, chairman of the program committee, before introducing the speaker of the evening called attention to the coming visit of the Destroyer Talbot of the U. S. Navy, which was expected to arrive some time Saturday or early Sunday morning. The welcoming committee had planned to hold a public dance for the crew of the vessel in the Municipal Auditorium which had been donated for the purpose. The general public would be charged a nominal admission and the money so raised would be used to help defray the expense of entertaining the crew of the vessel during its stay here. He said that he hoped the dance would be largely attended. Tuesday afternoon the crew would be taken for an automobile ride and at the close would be entertained at a dinner. Mr. Loughran then introduced the speaker of the evening, Judge Hasbrouck, who spoke in part as follows:

I have been called upon as city historian to lay before you some facts relating to the department of Police service of our city.

The Hon. John E. Kraft was elected mayor in March, 1890, qualifying in the same month. I had been corporation counsel since November, 1887. He was a Democrat and I was a Republican. There was a combination of Democratic and Republican which were not controlled by the Mayor who constituted a majority of the common council and that majority looked to me for guidance in municipal affairs. Mayor Kraft was of the opinion that the city situation was one in the city.

Allotments For Local Harbors Are Approved by the War Department

Sums of $13,000 For Rondout Harbor and $10,000 For Saugerties Harbor—Maintenance and Improvements of Channels in the Hudson River Calls For An Allotment of $500,000.

That the deeper Rondout Harbor may yet become a reality is evidenced by the action of the War Department yesterday in approving the allotment of $500,000 for maintenance and improvement of channels in the Hudson River. Included in the allotment was specifically mentioned $13,000 for Rondout Harbor and $10,000 for Saugerties Harbor. In addition $165,000 was set aside for the new Hudson River channel and $145,700 for Hudson River maintenance.

The project to deepen the Rondout harbor was given renewed attention last winter when plans were made to deepen the Hudson river to handle additional tonnage. At that time Congressman Philip Goodwin of this district argued that it was more important to plan and approve to deepen the river, then to have the approval of plans and appropriating of funds for a deeper Rondout Harbor was just a matter of time. He sought to have $15,000 set aside for the project and in addition $2,000 per year for maintenance.

Approved by Major General Lytle Brown as chief of army engineers, the project sponsored by Congressman Goodwin, calls for a 100-foot channel, widened at the bends, and 14 feet deep from deep water in the Hudson river to a point one and one-quarter miles above the mouth, thence 12 feet deep from there to the end of Island Dock.

Goodwin at that time said the improvements would make it possible to accommodate war vessels of lesser tonnage in addition to commercial craft. He also stressed that as a midway station Rondout Harbor is a strategic point, half way between New York harbor and Albany, where recent improvements have been made to make Albany a sea port capable of handling large vessels.

Mr. Goodwin appearing before the House River and Harbor Committee on February 2, stated Kingston was somewhat shut off from navigation by the fact that the harbor was inclined to silt and that sediment was filling the channel.

"If the logic behind the deepening of the Hudson was true," he said, "and if it was necessary to dredge the Hudson to accommodate the present traffic, then the same logic applies to the deepening and broadening of this harbor."

He offered the view that the locality entitled to the proposed outlay for its development as a port, particularly in view of other expenditures for navigation.

HEARST MADE ILLEGAL LANDING IN FRANCE

Bordeaux, France, June 22 (AP)—The "technically illegal" landing at the airport here yesterday of William Randolph Hearst and his party was the subject of an official report to Paris today.

The plane remained only half an hour and the American publisher and his friends stayed inside while gasoline was loaded.

Customs officials demanded papers and found visas were lacking. The pilot, in accordance with French regulations, sought and obtained permission of local authorities to proceed to London.

An old order expelling Hearst from France, officials said, would not be enforced.

HANFSTAENGL ELATES ANTI-NAZI DEMONSTRATIONS.

Cambridge, Mass., June 22 (AP)—Harvard's commencement week activities ended in a series of anti-Nazi demonstrations which entirely missed their mark—Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl, Hitler aide here for the 25th reunion.

The disturbances came late yesterday during the annual alumni exercises in the Harvard yard while Hanfstaengl, target of the demonstrators, was enjoying an ocean dip thirty miles away.

Nine youthful anti-Nazi enthusiasts, three of them women, were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace.

RE-ARGUMENT IN MATTER OF DEPOSING S. F. TEN EYCK

A re-argument before Supreme Court Judge Foster at Monticello was being held today in the matter of depositing S. F. Ten Eyck as county sealer of weights and measures.

The Democratic majority of the board of supervisors questions Mr. Ten Eyck's right to serve. The matter was argued some time ago before Judge Loughran but before the matter was determined and a decision handed down Judge Loughran was assigned to the Court of Appeals and therefore disqualified from considering the matter. Mr. Ten Eyck continues to act pending the determination of the matter in the court.

Tompson Arrested

Leland Tompkins, 46, of Oak Hill, was arrested early this morning by Officer Joseph Fallon on a warrant charging violation of the vehicle and traffic law. He was committed to the county jail to be turned over to the state troopers for arraignment before Justice Ray Christina of Philipstown.

Convention Ends

Minneapolis, June 22 (AP)—A brilliant banquet at the University of Minnesota Memorial Stadium ended the National Shrine Convention last night. The 1934 convention will be held in Washington, D. C.

Mysterious Blonde Is Harry L. Hopkins Gets Inserted In Chronicle Choice on Whether He Of Ivan Poderjay's Life Will Head Housing Plan

Police Believe That Miss Agnes Tuferson, Who Disappeared Recently, Is In This Country, Dead or Alive.

PODERJAY IN JAIL

Jugoslovan Soldier of Fortune Is Being Held on Suspicion of Murder and Bigamy.

New York, June 22 (AP)—A mysterious blonde was inserted by police today in the chronicle of Ivan Poderjay's life and loves.

Captain John H. Ayres, of the Missing Persons Bureau, said that police here believed that Miss Agnes Tuferson, the brilliant corporation lawyer who disappeared shortly after she was married to Poderjay, was in this country—alive or dead.

Of the blonde woman, police had little to say. They did not identify her, but she had visited Poderjay at his Manhattan apartment, they said, representing herself as his sister-in-law.

The blonde is the third woman, in addition to Miss Tuferson, authorities have mentioned in their search for the complete story of Poderjay's activities in this country.

The others are Miss Helen Vogel, concert violinist who discouraged the soldier of fortune's attentions by calling him a "male vamp" and a woman, unidentified, who police believe became acquainted with him when he went to Stamford, Conn., last winter to sell a patented lock.

Captain Ayres announced that a scrutiny of bank records here showed that shortly after the marriage of Poderjay and Miss Tuferson she gave him a draft on a London bank for $5,000.

From the bank account here, he said, $10,000 was withdrawn. It now shows a balance of $35.

Held In Vienna Jail

Vienna, June 22 (AP)—Ivan Poderjay, whose most recent wife, Miss Agnes Tuferson of Detroit and New York, is missing, was held in jail today on a suspicion of murder and bigamy.

The wife whom he married March 22, 1933, in London, Marguerite Sanna Ferrand, is held on a suspicion of having profited by a murder.

Despite these suspicions which, under Austrian law, are sufficient to hold both of the suspects in jail, the police said they were most anxious to hear some definite charges against the couple.

Vienna authorities, after providing Captain Ivan Poderjay board and lodging for nine days, indicated today that if New York wants him it had better hurry up and act.

The police were frankly impatient to get rid of Poderjay, who is suspected of no crime in this country. Should the body of his bride, Agnes Tuferson, be found in New York or elsewhere, officials indicated, Poderjay's extradition would be speedy.

The latest find in the investigation of Poderjay's possessions was scores of erotic drawings.

Charges by Leopold Bestermann, attorney for Susanne Ferrand, Frenchwoman who was living with Poderjay here, that he is a spy, were scouted by police.

Poderjay and Miss Ferrand are being held without charge, since there is no habeas corpus act in Austria.

Innocent to United Kingdom.

London, June 22 (AP)—Scotland yard indicated today that, as far as the United Kingdom is concerned, Ivan Poderjay is an innocent citizen of the world.

Poderjay is held in a Vienna jail on suspicion of murder and bigamy in connection with the case of the missing Agnes Tuferson of Detroit and New York, but the sleuths of the famous police division have investigated that suspicion here without confirmation.

They are convinced that all four principals in the case, Poderjay, Miss Tuferson, Marguerite Sanna Ferrand, and the girl whom Poderjay married here March 22, 1933, and Capt. Frederick Dayer, the Englishman with whom Miss Ferrand once lived, have not committed criminal offenses in Great Britain.

Despite rumors that Poderjay was married at the time of his wedding to Miss Ferrand, police officials say they have no conclusive information that the 1933 ceremony was bigamous. There were no indications, however, that he obtained a divorce before his marriage to Miss Tuferson nine months later in New York.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, June 22 (AP)—The position of the treasury June 20 was: Receipts $90,462,282.23; expenditures $125,499,139.05; balance $2,657,516,258.54; customs receipts for the month $12,991,448.27. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $2,942,555,414.70; expenditures $4,821,224,222.93; (including $3,823,226,797.29 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures $2,868,547,929.22; gold assets $7,355,926,254.72.

He was committed to the Ulster county jail to await a hearing before Justice George A. Neider of Woodstock.

Present Relief Administrator May Not Wish To Accept New Responsibilities Which Supporters Urge for Him.

TASK WILL BE GREAT

Government States Definitely That It Will Advance No Funds in This Emergency Set-up.

Washington, June 22 (AP)—Appointment of Harry L. Hopkins as administrator of the new housing law appeared today to depend on whether he prefers to take that position or to continue as relief administrator.

His appointment is still being urged by those responsible for the legislation to increase home building and repair. Little consideration has been given to any other man.

Meanwhile, inquiries about the borrowing of money for home repair are bringing the reminder here that the federal government itself advances no funds under this latest emergency set-up.

What lending there is will be done by banks and building and loan associations, with the privilege of government insurance of the loans to varying degrees.

One of Hopkins' associates expressed the opinion that he would at first glance choose to continue his present work, and to take on the housing job also. It was said, however, that this probably would be too much for one man.

The delay in appointing an administrator has made it difficult to answer numerous letters to Washington about the procedure necessary to get a loan. The administrator will have to set up a series of regulations to govern the situation.

May Apply To Private Agency.

In general, however, a man in Hackensack, New Jersey, for instance, who wants to take advantage of the opportunity, may apply to any private lending agency for a loan to build a porch which would cost say $1,500.

If the bank or other agency wishes to make the loan, it will do so and arrange for the home owner to pay it back in monthly payments which may run as long as five years.

The lender then may notify the new housing administration, under procedure not yet outlined, that he wishes to take advantage of the government's guarantee. If the loan meets the government's requirements, the administrator will guarantee the lender against loss up to 20 per cent of the loan.

There is no reason why a person desiring to make a loan may not now begin negotiations with his bank or another lending agency. As a matter of fact, officials here say some banks have already begun to lend, with the idea of taking advantage of the insurance phase of the law when the president signs the bill.

Until that time it is impossible to detail the steps necessary. A home repair campaign is expected to be started within 30 days, at which time a huge program to inform both prospective lenders and borrowers will be undertaken.

It is similarly impossible to lay out exactly as yet, procedure for getting a loan for a new home, and it will probably take somewhat longer for the government to explain this phase of the program.

When regulation as to loans for new homes are complete, the would-be home owner will seek his loan from a building and loan association or other such mortgage company, and again it is the lender who will decide whether to advance the funds.

Insurance Up To 80 Per Cent

If he does make the loan, the lender can be insured up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property. If a home owner, for instance, has $2,000, he probably will be able to borrow an additional $8,000 to build a $10,000 home, because the $8,000, or 80 per cent of the appraisal, will be insured.

Here again the government lends no money. It simply supervises a mutual insurance fund which will be built up by payments of the home owner, probably amounting to one per cent a year, in addition to his payments for interest and for reducing the amount of the loan.

The procedure necessary for these loans is much more involved than in the case of modernization, and in all likelihood this phase of the program probably will not get under way for perhaps 60 days.

A third feature of the program will permit persons now owning homes to refinance their existing mortgages up to 70 per cent of the appraised value.

For instance, if a home owner has paid up 30 per cent of the value of his home he may get the remaining 70 per cent in an insured mortgage similar to that given in the case of a new home.

This procedure will make it possible for the home owner to get a long term loan in place of his existing first and second mortgages which usually are supposed to be paid off in full in from three to five years.

In the case of both new and old homes, the insured mortgage will be paid off in up to 20 years. In both cases the interest rate will be materially reduced from what has been customary in the past.

Asked what his plans were, Hopkins told reporters:

"You don't get officers around here—You know the size of the job I have here." Hopkins added, referring to the relief administration.

John Jordan, Former Employee of New York City Water Department, Seeks To Remove Martin J. Every as Olive Assessor in Court Proceedings.

Although an Assessment Roll It Is Claimed Defendant Did Not Have Property of Record Which Jordan Says Is Necessary

A hearing was held Thursday before Assistant Attorney General Leary at Albany in the matter of the application of John Jordan of West Shokan for leave to bring a quo warranto action against Martin J. Every, an assessor of the town of Olive. Mr. Jordan, an unsuccessful candidate for the office of assessor, alleges in his complaint that Mr. Every was not qualified to assume the office of assessor on January 1, 1931, because he was not a property owner of record at the time although Every's name appeared on the assessment roll.

The action was termed by the defendant as an attempt to deliver over the town of Olive to the city of New York. In the town of Olive lies the major portion of the Ashokan reservoir and there has been much controversy over the assessment of the Ashokan property. It was Mr. Every, who as chairman of the board of assessors, was instrumental in increasing the assessment of Ashokan reservoir property in Olive from approximately $475,000 in 1921 to the sum of $5,000,000 as it now exists.

In the answer filed with the Attorney General the defendant alleges that the complainant, John Jordan, played in work connected with the office of assessor in the town of Olive at practically every biennial town election for the past twelve years; that four years ago, complainant opposed defendant herein as a candidate for the office of assessor and defendant was the successful candidate, with a majority of approximately 176 votes—that the petitioner herein is a former employee of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of the City of New York, and was employed in work connected with the Ashokan Reservoir, the greater part of which reservoir is located in the town of Olive; that said reservoir, since its construction, which covered a period from in or about the year 1907 to in or about the year 1915, and down to the present time, has been a part of the water supply system of the City of New York; that it is one of the largest, if not the largest, impounding reservoir for municipal water supply purposes, with a capacity of approximately one hundred twenty-eight billion gallons of water.

The answer further alleges that Mr. Every when he was first elected assessor in 1921 found the assessment $475,000 against the reservoir but that after investigation as to cost of the structure the assessment in Olive has been increased to $5,000,000 on the theory that the cost was in excess of $12,000,000. The answer states that it is the belief of the assessors of the town that the present assessment is just and fair.

John Jordan appeared at the hearing before the Attorney General with County Attorney Arthur B. Ewig as his counsel. Mr. Every was represented by Robert G. Groves, former county attorney, and Harry H. Flemming of counsel. Mr. Every also appeared in person.

Mr. Jordan's Specific Charge

The specific charge which Mr. Jordan brings and which seeks permission to have tried out by a court is that at the time of his assuming office on January 1, 1934, Mr. Every was not a property owner of record as required by the town law.

Prior to January 1, 1934, under the town law in order to qualify a candidate's name must appear on the assessment roll of the town and be assessed for real property. Since 1921 Mr. Every's name has appeared on the assessment roll of the town of Olive. However in 1923 there was an amendment to the town law and under that amendment which became effective on January 1, 1934, in order to qualify for a town office a person must be the owner "of record" of real property in the town.

It is under that provision that the present charge is brought. It is alleged that while Mr. Every's name did appear on the assessment roll there was no record filed of his being a property owner and that therefore under the law as amended he was not qualified to run for office and assume the duties on January first of this year.

At the opening of the hearing Mr. Ewig noted his appearance and stated that he had not originally brought the proceeding, that it was one of the late Palmer Canfield's matters which he had taken over for Mr. Jordan.

Home Loan Average Is $4,300 for County

Unless someone has their figures mixed Dutchess county is way ahead in number of loans made by the Home Owners' Loan Office, but Ulster county leads in average amount of the individual loans.

A Poughkeepsie dispatch to the New York Times this morning says that Dutchess county home owners have borrowed more than a quarter of a million of dollars, the total number of applications being 450, of which number 11 were rejected.

Inquiry at the Ulster county clerk's office shows that mortgages have been filed totaling $349,500.74, covering 81 different loans.

This would seem to indicate an average loan for Dutchess county of between five and six hundred dollars, while in Ulster county the average is over $4,300.

Modena Methodists' Anniversary Fete

From July 1 to July 8 the Modena Methodist Church will celebrate its 14th year of active ministry in the community.

Methodism was introduced into this village in 1786 by the Rev. Ezekiel Cooper and John McCuskey. This section was then a part of a very large circuit having seven preaching places including New Paltz and New Paltz Landing and extending into New Jersey. The first preaching place are not known but some of the material of the stone schoolhouse where the services were held for many years can be found just north of the present village. The first church was erected in 1826 just at the southern edge of the village near the old schoolhouse where "Hub's" Service Station is now located. The present church was built in 1858. Other items of religious history in Ulster and Orange counties may be found in the historical booklet leaving the train June 27.

The program of the celebration is as follows:

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Persecution of the Clergy Has Been Intensified In Germany

(Special Dispatch to The Freeman)
By ANTHONY LANE
(Copyright, 1934)

Berlin, June 22.—A wave of anti-clericalism unprecedented in modern times, except possibly in Soviet Russia, is sweeping over Germany, and the question is already being asked whether national socialism is not becoming engaged in a titanic battle against Christianity.

The German comic papers, which like the rest of the press, are under Nazi control and receive their directions from the propaganda bureau of Herr Goebbels, are full of caricatures of ecclesiastics, particularly priests and bishops of the Roman Catholic Church. The Catholic clergy is represented invariably as interfering in politics and working against the nation, as represented by the Hitler regime.

Chancellor Dollfus of Austria is pictured as being under the tutelage of the Roman clergy, and Rome is blamed for the failure of Austria to rally to the Nazi standard.

The Protestant churches that have not as yet signed their submission to the "National" church, headed by Mgr. Mueller are almost as harshly treated as the Catholics.

The failure of the recent negotiations in Rome between Hitler's envoy, Herr Buttman, and the Vatican—negotiations which were intended to arrive at an agreement on the interpretation of the concordat negotiated last year by Franz von Papen—is blamed entirely on the Vatican's alleged desire to revive the Catholic center party in Germany and combat the Nazi regime.

During the past month the persecution of the clergy has been intensified. In Munich, contrary to tradition dating back for centuries, the public buildings, by government order, were not decorated on the Sunday of Corpus-Christi, the principal Bavarian religious festival. The reason alleged was that the churches had failed to celebrate the national festival on May 1.

Repeatedly religious organizations of children and young people have been forbidden to hold athletic meets, songfests and the like, the authorities insisting that church organizations may assemble only for strictly religious purposes.

The religious press has been treated with the utmost severity. One church paper, the "Diocesan Bulletin" of Berlin, was suppressed by the police on account of an article protesting at the delay in prosecuting the aggressors of a Catholic youth who had been assaulted, presumably by Nazis, in Marienburg. Religious papers have been warned that they must limit discussion to purely religious questions.

Both the Catholic clergy and the non-conformist Protestant clergy (the latter representing about one-fourth of the Protestants in Germany) see in the present tendencies of the Nazi government a strong movement toward Paganism. Bishops and priests have repeatedly protested against this tendency and have issued warnings from their pulpits against the apparent desire of the Hitler government to destroy traditional forms of Christianity and replace them by a national religion based on the pre-Christian worship of the old Teutonic gods.

The Plan

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The rain continued, a delightful rain without any thunder and lightning, and just heavy and steady enough to refresh Fiddle Muddle.

Willy Nilly had so much to do he didn't know where to commence, but he started in fixing up his house. Christopher was busy in his nest, Top Notch in his general store. The bears were off on a little trip of their own, and Rip, the dog, was out for a long cross-country run. The Fiddle Muddles had plenty with which to occupy themselves.

Mrs. Quack, Duck, and Mr. Quack, Mr. and Mrs. Quackles, the Quacks and all the little ducks followed Mrs. Quack to Quacker-ville.

When they reached Mrs. Quack's pond she said:

"First of all we must have some of my seed and water soup, and then we'll talk over the plan."

They were hungry after the walk, and they all nibbled while the rain ran down their feathered backs. Mrs. Quack was very good hostess and she saw that they nibbled and nibbled until they had had enough. Then they swam slowly around the pond until they reached the tiny shore at one end.

"Now," quacked Mrs. Quack, "I will tell you all about my plan. I have thought it would be a marvelous idea for all the little ducks to go to camp this summer. That's a very fine and smart and superior thing to do—to let the ducklings have a taste of camp life.

"They must other little ducks, they play games, they learn the names of trees and plants. Oh, it's very good for them."

"But where is there a camp for ducklings?" quacked Mrs. Quack.

When all is lost give honor to it as pretty hard to realize on the mirage.

The man who forgets himself is not necessarily a victim of amnesia.

The day dream is almost sure to go by contradiction if we spend too much time on it.

The man who says exactly what he thinks ought always to think a long time before speaking.

This would be a much happier world if we couldn't borrow trouble except on cultural security.

Busy Aboard Lightship.
There is plenty to do aboard a lightship, according to an authority. The radio beacon must be carefully maintained and the signal given every third minute when visibility is poor. The fog siren is sounded every 15 seconds under such conditions. There is constant painting, scrubbing and polishing to be done and then regularly water temperatures are taken, the direction and velocity of the wind is reported, and a record of all passing vessels is kept.

To THE millions of satisfied users of Firestone Tires, this new guarantee will have no particular significance. They are familiar with the satisfaction, safety and care-free service given by Firestone Tires, which mean more than any written guarantees which lie behind them. But to those who have never had the safe and satisfying experience of driving on Firestone Tires, we are announcing this all-inclusive guarantee in order that they may be assured beforehand of the satisfaction and safety which they will experience afterwards.

The greatest guarantee of all is the time-established guarantee behind every Firestone Tire which comes from the unequalled performance records of Firestone Tires. The fact that every one of the 33 drivers at the Indianapolis 500-Mile Sweepstakes chose and bought Firestone High Speed Tires, speaks for itself. Guarantees mean little to them. The greatest tire guarantee for you is the extra quality, strength, safety and dependability built into every Firestone Tire.

Call on the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store in your community and equip your car with Firestone Tires today. Get the absolute protection of our guarantee for 12 months against all road hazards,* for life against all defects, and for safety, economy and greater service through the extra quality built into every Firestone Tire. Don't delay. You will save money at present prices because crude rubber has advanced 442% and cotton 190%, and tire prices cannot remain at present low levels.

*When used in commercial service, these tires are guaranteed for six months.

Classis of Ulster Met Here Wednesday

The Classis of Ulster met in the First Dutch Church Wednesday, June 20, and voted to grant the request of the Katsbaan Church that the pastoral relationship between the Rev. John H. Howard and that church should be dissolved. It was an open session and many of the Katsbaan congregation were present. Both pastor and people were heard at length on the question. The vote to grant the request was favorable to the church, there being but one dissenting vote cast. This relationship is effective June 30, 1934. The Classis appointed the Rev. John B. Stekler to be the constitutional supervisor of the acts and proceedings of the consistory of this church until a new pastor shall have been installed.

The Classis then proceeded to examine John Franklin Heidenreich for licensure and for ordination. The General Synod of the Reformed Church, at the session recently held in Grand Rapids, Mich., granted the request of this Classis for a dispensation for Mr. Heidenreich, and this authorized the Classis to proceed. The examinations were unanimously sustained, and certificates of licensure and ordination were voted to Mr. Heidenreich. The West Hurley Reformed Church of Zena, N. Y., having requested that Classis to assign Mr. Heidenreich to ministerial service in their church, the Classis granted this request. He is to be their stated supply minister and pastor and will be ordained on the evening of July 10, at 8 o'clock, in the Zena Church. The program for that service was arranged by a committee of Dr. F. B. Seely, supervisor of that church, Willis Wolven, elder, and J. P. Heidenreich. The sermon on that occasion is to be preached by the Rev. Dr. L. B. Bore of this city, and address to the new minister and to the church are to be made, respectively, by the Rev. C. C. Chilton and the Rev. A. E. Oudemool.

The new minister of the Zena Church is a graduate of Central College, Pella, Iowa, and of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, class of '34. During the past year he has served most effectively as pastor and preacher in the church to which he is now being assigned more definitely. The people have rallied enthusiastically under his leadership. Fine opportunities for even larger service await the minister and to the church are to be made, respectively, by the Rev. C. C. Chilton and the Rev. A. E. Oudemool.

The Classis adjourned to meet on July 10, at Zena, in the church to proceed with the solemn service of ordination. Dr. F. B. Seely closed the session with the benediction.

No Possibility of Achieving A United Ireland Republic

By A. G. GARDNER
England's Greatest Liberal Editor
Special Dispatch to The Freeman
Copyright, 1934.

London, June 22—In the midst of the vast questions of disarmament, debts, European turmoil and far eastern menaces, it is remarkable how completely Ireland has passed from the stage of British politics. In pre-home rule days it was the ceaseless preoccupation of parliament and the press.

Whatever government was in power and whatever clouds were on the world horizon, it was Ireland that held the center of the stage and the Irish brigade in the house of commons that kept parliament feverishly alive. No matter how remote the subject of the moment was from Ireland, it was complicated by the action of the Irish members, who, whatever their internal dissensions, had one common motive, which was to make government impossible.

It was this fact that led many of those who had no passion for home rule for Ireland to advocate it as the only means of obtaining home rule for England, and since the goal has been achieved it is probably true to say that England is more satisfied with the result than Ireland itself. Apart from the periodic reminders of the Irish sweepstakes, it is extraordinarily indifferent to Irish affairs, and the policy of Eamon DeValera, so far from rousing interest, has tended to increase that indifference. Nothing I think is farther from the mind of any section of opinion on this side of St. George's channel than the idea of intervening again on the other side.

It is unfortunate that this fact is not appreciated by Mr. De Valera, for his anti-British obsession vitiate and perplexes everything that he does. This is apparent in the latest phase of his policy. His bill for the abolition of the Irish Free State Senate has now passed its final stage and it will, in the absence of a general election, become operative in about twelve months. This will remove the chief obstacle that remains to making a final rupture of the British connection, but he is still urged by his extremist wing to make that rupture now and to declare a republic forthwith.

He cannot plead that the treaty stands in his way, for he has torn up the treaty until practically nothing of it remains. The oath of allegiance has gone, the annuities agreement is repudiated, appeals to the privy council are forbidden and the office of governor-general has been reduced to a fiction.

In short, he has made southern Ireland a Republic in everything but name and has deprived his country of any economic advantages it had from membership in the British commonwealth. Nevertheless, he hesitates to make the final declaration, on the ground that he must have the "maximum amount of freedom"—which presumably the abolition of the senate will give him—and because of the "hostility" of Britain.

But the real fly in the ointment is not Britain. It is Ulster. Nothing is more certain than that if Mr. DeValera declares the Free State a Republic, Britain will cheerfully and regretfully, take it "lying down." But, also, nothing is more certain than that the hope of a united Ireland will ipso facto vanish. The six northern counties will have nothing to do with an Irish Republic.

Apart from the political, racial and religious cleavage—which might have been spurned by reasonable statesmanship—Ulster knows on which side its economic bread is buttered and it is not likely to sacrifice the valuable assets of the British connection for an uncomfortable partnership in an Irish Republic whose main concern would be antagonism to Britain.

This is the stumbling block in Mr. DeValera's path. For he has promised his followers not merely a republic, which in fact if not in name is already established; but a united Ireland Republic, which there is no possibility of achieving. For even he cannot contemplate coercion, although presumably that is in the minds of the fire-eaters of the Irish Republican army who are urging him to take the final step without delay. Even the abolition of the senate will not bring him a step nearer the accomplishment of his ultimate aim.

In these circumstances there seems no way out of the present deadlock between the two countries. The British government is ready at any time to enter into negotiations with the Free State for the settlement of all outstanding questions. I am sure that such a settlement would not be defeated on any question of Free State status.

British opinion is profoundly indifferent to whether Ireland cuts the painter formally, as she has done practically, or not; but the repudiation of the treaty must be the subject of negotiation and agreement. When that is done, there is no reason why sensible agreements should not be reached between the two countries, whether Ireland is an external power or whether she is still a member of the British commonwealth system.

FASHIONS By ELEANOR GUNN

Small Fry Fashions

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild.

An undersleeve of organdie provides the crisp touch in the center printed voile which is smoothed and relieved by a tiny organdie collar. Striped dainty makes the little frock at right which has a middie collar repeating the colors of the print in piping and lacing. The little playsuit is of seersucker in light green and white and is trimmed with pearl buttons.

An Ocean Atmosphere

New York—Not in the animal kingdom, but nevertheless exploiting the sea going mood of this summer's costume jewelry is a series of rope items, done in sailor's knots very heavily worked in natural color cord suggesting deck ropes, with tiny bright red, white or blue nautical motifs such as anchors, stars and so on dangle from them. One group includes such pieces as sports bands, bracelets, necklaces and pins—one of the most dashing of the latter being the harpoon pin taken from whaling equipment, in catlin with twisted rope already to let loose in case one meets a whale.

Cotton the Vacationist's Friend

New York—Vacation days, now at hand, makes fewer demands for equipment than usual. Not that the vacationist does not need an assortment, but cotton being king, queen and all the honors, is fortunately less costly than silk. Not much, but still enough to help a girl get a little ahead.

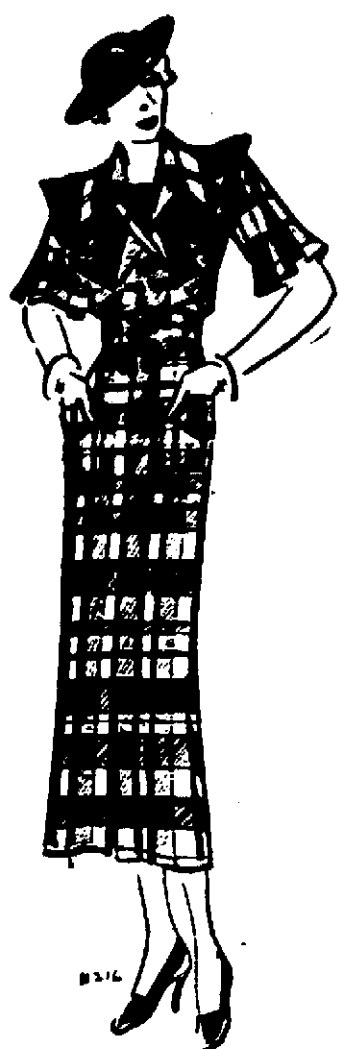

Be sure to have a separate skirt with which to wear blouses and sweaters. This, with the skirt of one's suit, for one must have a suit, makes two skirts. Have the odd one a pastel tweed or a novelty pastel cotton.

A plaid gingham or linen will do very smartly for morning and will be trim looking en route or even in town when vacation is over. There's something about a plaid that is young and gay and besides that they are able to stand rough usage. You will find a most refreshing array of plaid blouses to wear with plain suits. Some of these are organdie and therefore especially seasonable.

Seersucker is a friend to tie to for vacations. The shops, knowing the liking smart young things have for this material, have an array of seersucker for all purposes. Some are backless and made with long full skirts, the type of dress one might turn up in at any summer dance or cocktail party. Then there's dotted Swiss. It is very good looking if done in navy with pin dots in white or in red, for the red and white combination is one of the smash hits of the summer season.

Beach dresses are cotton too, made with wrap around skirts or pajamas. They come in the gay Mexican colors, or in the red and blues or black and yellows peculiar to Baque linen. It would be possible to have an entire summer wardrobe of cotton.

IF YOU LIKE SCOTCH

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

There is a cigarette bag with a new way of taking care of this extra gadget. One corner of colored enamel snaps back and a cigarette pops out. The case proper is built into the inside of the bag and is entirely invisible.

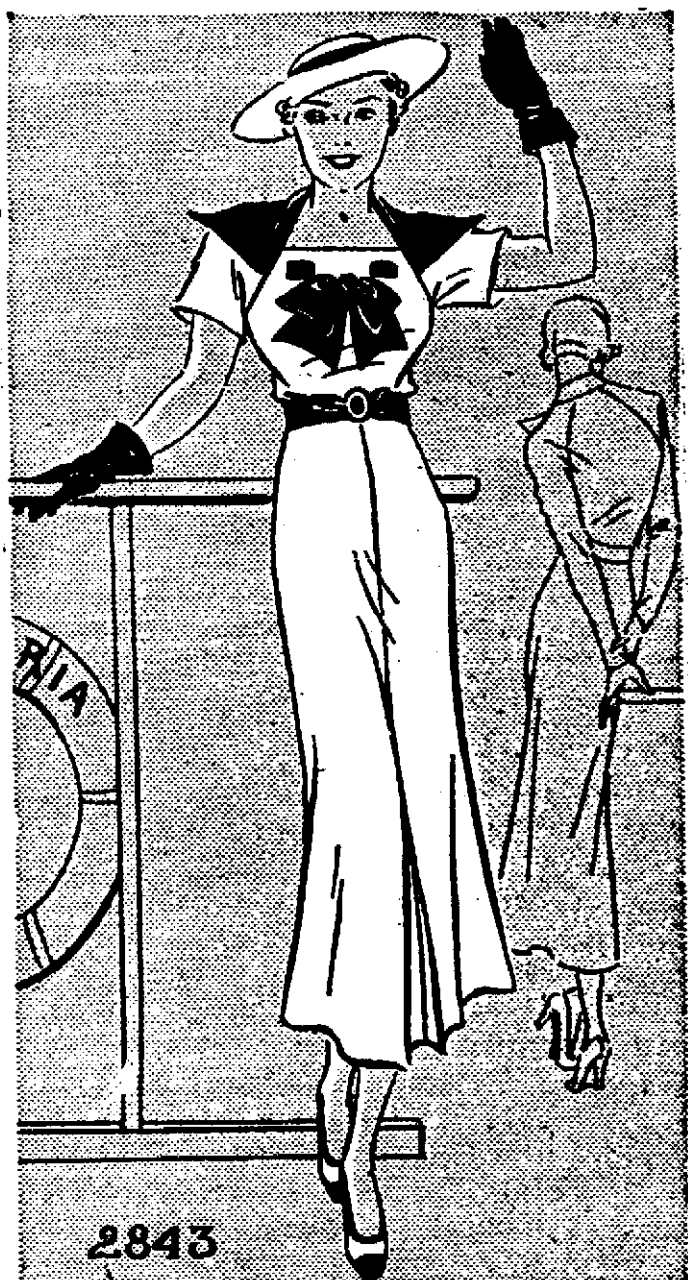

Printed washable crepe in a large plaid design of gray, white and yellow makes this frock. The sleeves are short and made full by inverted pleats, while the laced closing of the belt and the large brown taffeta bow are interesting features.

Pastel! Dark Accents!

Edited by

LAURA I. BALDT, A.M.

Here's a distinctive new model in light blue tub silk with navy trim. Incidentally—dark accents provide much dash and chic to the smartest dresses. Of course, you can choose from the gay cottons as pique, seersucker, peasant weaves or pastel or linen prints for this early made dress.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious illness.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal system.

Isn't this "natural way" safer and far more pleasant than taking potent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the natural green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

retary: Mrs. Alice Mellor, assistant secretary; Miss Edith Dickinson, treasurer; Mrs. Ina Lyons is chairman of the Sunshine work. The club planned for a picnic to be held July 12 at the camp of Mrs. Charles DuBois in Watson Hollow. There was a good attendance of members present and the hostess served refreshments. No meetings will be held until September.

Mrs. Averilla Buckhout returned Thursday after a 10-day visit with friends in Arlington, East Orange and Asbury Park, N. J., and in New York City.

Frederick Bradshaw arrived Tuesday from Lansing, Mich., to spend several weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gedney. Arthur T. Williams and Miss Marian Williams joined a picnic of former Cornell students at the Davenport farm in Accord on Sunday.

The Boy Scout troop divided profits with E. Randall in parking cars near the Schantz lower mill on boat race day.

The members of the Guild of Holy Trinity Church will hold a food sale Saturday afternoon on the porch of Highland Inn.

It is reported that laws covering the overtime parking on the streets of the village are to be enforced. Reports say that the state has twice looked the situation over and considers the cars parked on both sides of the street on Vineyard avenue and for all day in the center of the village a menace. James S. Birby has the matter in charge. The 60-minute parking signs have all been repainted and placed on the curbs, but no one seems to know who has the power to arrest offenders.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe A. Williams drove up from Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday and returned Thursday, making a short visit with the former's brother, A. W. Williams. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Williams expect to leave soon for their home in St. Petersburg, Fla.

CROWDED DENMARK HOPES TO COLONIZE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Copenhagen. (AP)—Denmark is scanning the horizon for a new outlet for her surplus population which formerly emigrated to the United States.

Spots which look likely are Argentina, Brazil and Venezuela and the foreign office is inquiring of their governments whether they would entertain the idea of Danish settlements on a large scale.

The scheme is that the emigrants would form their own communities in a country of either their own or their government's selection. The Danish state is prepared to finance the emigrants, possibly allowing as high as $1,000 for each family.

If the South American countries are prepared to accept settlers, Dr. H. H. Steincke, minister for social affairs, plans to visit them, accompanied by Danish experts, for a survey of conditions and possibilities.

A great many Danes, however, oppose the idea of providing good citizens with money with which to become citizens of another country.

Y. W. SUMMER PROGRAM PLANS NEW FEATURE

A new and interesting feature of the Y. W. C. A. summer program for younger girls will be a stay-at-home camp to be conducted from July 10 to July 27 by the local association. During that time activities will be scheduled on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and the program will include many of the most enjoyable features of regular camp life.

Two days of the week, an out-of-door program has been arranged, including swimming, tennis, tether-ball, games and a picnic lunch. On the other two days, the girls will meet at the "Y" building for camp handicraft, dramatics, music, in chiding a rhythm band, folk dancing and general recreation.

All activities will be conducted under the direct supervision of the Y. W. C. A. staff and councilors, and life guards will be on duty in addition to swimming instructors.

Girls interested in the camp project are asked to communicate with the Y. W. C. A. for further details.

Values of Athletics Among the traits of character which intrinsically athletes are said to develop are sacrifice, self-control, loyalty, courtesy and honor.

Nature Lore Is "Y" Camp Feature

Camp Foreman, the Kingston Y. M. C. A.'s Camp for boys, makes it a policy to have a well-rounded program, activity varied enough so that every boy who attends the camp finds something to his liking. A special emphasis is given to handicraft and nature lore, however, because camp is such an ideal place to awaken a boy's interest in them. With capable leaders guiding the boys, many of the Foreman campers have developed an interest in birds, flowers, trees, butterflies and moths, mosses and lichens, the stars and constellations which have proven year round hobbies. Many fine nature collections were made at the "Y" camp last season and it is expected that this part of the program will be an important feature this year. A more complete nature library and reference books are being secured to assist in this work.

A rival interest of nature lore is the craft work done in the camp. Model boats, lawn decoration pieces, Indian war clubs, bows and arrows are some of the things the boys make from wood. In the leather craft division there are pocket books, key cases, belts and moccasins. Hammock weaving and bead work is also enjoyed by some of the boys.

The personnel of camp leaders, with two exceptions, is the same as last season. Assisting N. H. Fuller, the camp director, will be H. B. Stein of Buffalo, program director; Chester Baltz, Jr., in charge of the water front program; Myron Farwell of Sherburne, supervisor of archery and campfire programs; Clifford Van Valkenburgh, in charge of crafts, and Harry T. Gummer, assisting Mr. Stein with the nature and dramatic programs. The senior staff will be augmented by Larry Van Ertan, F. G. Smith, Aaron Dornbusch and Don McCausland cabin leaders who will also assist in the various features of the camp's program.

The camp which is operated for boys 10 years of age and over will begin its season July 5. Registrations are being received daily at the Y. M. C. A.

Leg-Power Boats

Note from the magazine Asia. "The leg rowers of the lovely Inle lake in the southern Shan states of Burma propel a boat with great power and perfect control by standing on one leg and entwining the other around the paddle for the stroke, which is circular in action, with the sharp finish so characteristic of the good waterman. It is not, of course, rowing with the leg, but with the whole weight of the body, as in all effective propulsion. The leg around the paddle acts only as a link between the body and the ear. The carmen use either leg, leaving one hand free to hold a parasol or fishing spear."

Blackbird Digs Methodically The blackbird, according to an English publication, is the only bird which will dig methodically in search of food. Instead of turning over a leaf here and there, this bird will persist in one small area until every possible chance of discovering food has been explored. Not until then does it seek a new pile of leaves or scrap heap to explore.

Many Entries For Mixed Golf Matches

Entries for the mixed two ball tournament to be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Wilby Golf Club course on Hurley avenue have been coming in remarkably well and indications are that there will be some interesting matches.

Tom Goodman, manager of the course, has received entries from a number of prominent local golfers and an invitation is extended to all to enter the tournament regardless whether members of the club or not. Green fees for the afternoon will be suspended for the tournament and all golfers are invited to take part. This will present an opportunity to look over the new course.

Immediately after the mixed two ball tournament Mr. Goodman has arranged for a Kichers handicap tournament for men.

There will be a few vacancies for caddies at the course Saturday and caddies are requested to communicate with Mr. Goodman Saturday.

FIRE BAZED STUDIO

THURSDAY AT WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, June 21.—Thursday the local fire department went out twice, once to fight a fire and the second time to appear at the convention in Saugerties.

About 2 a. m. the fire fighters answered an alarm to extinguish a blaze in the house of Clark Neher on Rieley's Lane, occupied by the Pierponts. The blaze had a good start by the time the firemen arrived, and gutted a portion of the house and destroyed the garage.

Cause of the fire was a hot water heater left burning all night, it is thought.

At 11 o'clock in the morning the firemen left the village for Saugerties to take part in the big parade, featuring the convention. George Reynolds, driver No. 1, drove the apparatus and a truckload of natty looking fire fighters followed. Walter Hastie's son, Robert, dressed in a fireman's uniform, rode on the engine as mascot.

First Wooden Indians
An authority on wooden Indians says: "Wooden Indians are not indigenous to American soil. As early as the reign of James I the wooden Indian was a familiar sight in England. Of the early wooden Indians in America, an odd, cupid-like Pocahontas that once stood guard on Hancock street, Boston, dates from 1730. The pioneer authenticated appearance of a clear store show figure was in 1770, when Christopher Deneuch opened a tobacco shop in Lancaster, Pa. This figure was not an Indian but a delicate miniature-type gentleman extending a small-box invitingly."

The Carat
The carat, a measure of weight or fineness, is used by jewelers to express both. A carat weighs four grains or the one hundred twentieth part of a Troy ounce. In determining the fineness of a precious metal 24 carats is considered the standard of purity. Hence an eighteen-carat gold ring would be one containing eighteen parts in 24 of pure gold.

Stream Improvement Part of C.C.C. Program

Albany, June 22.—Improved fishing for the disciples of Isaac Walton will, in all probability, be a reality during the next year if the stream improvement work planned by Lithgow Osborne, Conservation Commissioner, has anything to do with it. Last year the Commission announced that the policy of the Department which he heads would include stream improvement work and shortly thereafter he recommended that a part of the Civilian Conservation Corps work plans include this. Upon receiving approval some work was done on three Adirondack trout streams during September of last year. The plans for 1934 include projects for the improvement of approximately 70 miles of trout streams and for the building of a number of large dams to impound waters of fishing value. All this work is to be confined to state-owned lands. For the most part it will be in the Adirondacks and Catskills, but it also includes some state-owned tracts outside these areas. Over 22,000 man days work will be put in on stream improvement projects.

There seems no doubt that stream improvement work will have a beneficial effect on fishing, for two of the principles which lie behind this program are that the characteristics of the environment do control production and the improvement of any poor environmental features which are holding down production is certain to increase the supporting capacities. Work of this nature also was carried on during the winter on two streams in the Catskill region by CWA workers. Three CCC camps began this type of work in April and May of this year. When the work was started it was looked upon as being of an experimental nature and for that reason detailed records were kept so that the value of the different methods of construction could be properly appraised. It is now believed that sufficient time has elapsed to indicate that permanent results can be expected.

The work done to date has been on nine different streams of water and the conditions have materially differed, ranging from fine gravel streams of gentle flow to boulder streams of rapid current. In all this work it has been found that, although circumstances appear in the different streams mean different ways of doing the work, certain principles hold true in every case. One was that concentration of the stream current will speed up the velocity and increase the eroding power. It also was found that a study of the natural conditions or pattern of the good natural pools in each stream should be made and those natural pools imitated as much as possible in creating the artificial ones to improve the stream.

In this work the pools to attract the trout are created by constructing wings, deflectors, divers, riffles—all designed to concentrate the water in a narrow channel. The accelerated current thus scours out a pool below the obstruction and the obstruction helps to form a pool above where it is located. Improper placing of deflectors will mean eroding of stream banks in many cases and extreme care has to be taken. The pools created make ideal hiding places for the trout if properly sheltered, either naturally or by placing of a log, tree or boulder.

The dams, planned to impound lakes of a number of acres, are of several types and for various purposes. Several are to create desirable waterfowl conditions or to serve recreational purposes, including angling. One of the projects is the building of a dam on the west branch of the Sacandaga River to prevent upstream migration of northern pike, which have done much damage in this fine trout stream since the Sacandaga Reservoir was built. A number of small fishing dams also are to be erected. These latter increase the water area and often form a pond of value for the trout. Streams that become extremely low in summer are helped materially by such dams.

The general program and the planning of this work has been placed under the direction of the Bureau of Biological Survey of the Conservation Department in charge of Dr. Emmeline Moore. The details are being handled by Dr. John R. Greeley, regarded in a number of states as an expert on that particular line of work. Each stream is studied carefully before any actual work is started. In general the plan has not been to start with any one set plan, but to determine what changes are needed to correct bad conditions and to carry out all improvements which can be made that will better conditions in each stream and increase trout population in these bodies of water.

'Work Longer' Chiang Decree Tells Chinese

KANCHANG, China (AP)—In an order to the 6-hour day advocated for workers in the United States, General Chiang Kai-shek, China's virile leader, has ordered a 10-hour day in the provinces of Honan, Hubei, Anhwei, Kiangsu and Fukien, where the anti-communist campaign is in progress.

In an identical order to the five provincial governments, the generalissimo makes the following comments on working hours in China:

"Although the 8-hour day is the general rule in America and foreign countries, it must be noted that one of the principal aims of their labor laws is to curb over-production. Being materially in a backward state, China does not have that problem."

"Her anxieties rather lie in the task of providing for the needs of her people."

"Furthermore, productive activities in the five provinces of late years have been especially retarded, due to rampant banditry."

"Henceforth, with the exception of juvenile workers, all factory employees shall follow the 10-hour day, so that they may accomplish in four days what requires five days' labor in other countries."

"Each extra exertion on the part of workers in the five provinces, when continued over a sufficiently long period, will prove an important factor in local recovery and in the replenishment of our national strength."

Like President Roosevelt, General Chiang is always ready to settle disputes between capital and labor.

"In issue," the 10-hour day decree, the generalissimo said he would not tolerate harsh treatment of workers and told workers to bring their grievances to him."

Kingston: "Sorrell and Son," Made into one of the finest silent pictures ever presented on the screen several years ago, this story from the pen of the prolific Warwick Deering has been revised into a talking picture of charm and merit. It is the history of a man, beaten by life, who devotes the remainder of his years to his son. Upon him he showers all his love, help and affection, for in him he sees himself as he might have been. Filmed in England by a British company, H. B. Warner is the only American actor with a leading role in the play. As Sorrell, Mr. Warner plays an inspired part and the picture is decidedly worth seeing.

Orpheum: "Torch Singer" and "Life in the Raw." Claudette Colbert is a blues singer in the opening picture, and she has a right to be, because troubles assault her greatly. All turns out well in the final stanza, however. The cast includes Ricardo Cortez, David Manners and Lyda Roberti. "Life in the Raw" as the title indicates, is not a drawing room drama. It's a tale of the wild, wide open spaces, where men are men and a horse is man's best pal. The fireworks begin early and stay late as George O'Brien, Charlie Trevor and Greta Nissen work out the plot together.

Broadway: "Midnight" and "Gun Justice." Sidney Fox, along with an excellent cast, works hard in this melodrama of capital punishment. The foreman of a jury who sends a woman to the electric chair is the father of a daughter who kills the man she loves. There are not many bright spots in this show. "Gun Justice" is a western thriller with Ken Maynard in the saddle. "Carnera-Baer Fight Pictures" will also be shown.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Earl Carroll's Murder at the Vanities." A new angle on musical comedy presentation is taken from the successful Broadway play of the same name and transferred to the screen with a new cast, new costumes and scenery. Out of it all comes one of the most elaborate and colorful talkie revues yet conceived, and although it does its best to be shocking in some of its dance numbers, and although some of the choruses try to imitate a nudist camp, this show has enough beauty, excitement and humor to make it well worth seeing. The plot is far more complicated than most shows of this type. It seems that murder goes on back stage while the "Vanities" is in progress. The murderer is captured while the show goes on. Those in the cast include Victor McLaglen, Jack Oakie, Carl Brisson, Kit Carlisle and Duke Ellington and his band. An added feature is the "Carnera-Baer Fight Pictures."

Wrecking of Vessel Led to Settling of Bermuda

The wrecking of the vessel Sea Venture, one of the nine ships sailing to the early settlement of Virginia under the command of Sir George Somers, led eventually to the settling of Bermuda. When it was only eight days from its destination, the small vessel ran into a storm, lost touch with its companion ships and began to sink.

After three days, notes a writer in the Detroit News, the crew gave up in despair, drank all the liquors on board and prepared to die. Just then, according to an old account, "Sir George Somers sitting upon the poop of the ship where he sat three days and three nights together, without meals, and little or no sleep most wisely and happily described land."

It was Bermuda, and the Sea Venture fortunately lodged between two rocks, so that the entire company of 150 men not only got to shore, but also salvaged most of their goods and provisions. There were plenty of hogs, berries and wild birds for the crew to live on, and from Bermuda cedar Sir George fashioned two more boats, with which he at last reached Virginia.

Sir George, however, had not seen the last of the islands. He sailed back to Bermuda to get supplies for the Virginia colonists and died there. Today his heart lies buried in the historic town of St. George's, named in his honor.

Rice on Terraced Land

In many parts of Oceania rice planting is done on terraced land, flooded by means of a sluice. This method is employed particularly in the highlands, where the soil is not always fertile and planting on the slopes is difficult. The irrigation and terracing overcome both conditions, converting much otherwise useless soil into rice beds.

"Moths often dance," declared an entomologist in Scotland.

Saw-Whet Owl Not Much Larger Than a Sparrow

A rasping sound, like that of a file being scraped over the bark of a tree, coming out of thick evergreens at night will tell you that somewhere among the needles of those trees there is concealed Michigan's smallest owl, but much larger than a house sparrow, but a vicious, beneficial little yellow-eyed demon for all that. It is the Acadian owl, also called the saw-whet or sparrow owl, a dainty little bird, considerably more common than is usually supposed.

Early in May the Acadian owl hatches its young. Its nest may be an old woodpecker hole or a cavity in a tree or decayed stump. It is during the time when its young are being fed that this owl is worth a dozen cats or mouse traps around a farm or granary, for mice make up the chief part of its diet. Doubtless chipmunks, squirrels and occasionally a bird fall prey to its keen claws, but the score is about 17 to 2, that is, 17 mice against two birds or insects.

There are many descriptions of the songs of the saw-whet owl, and of course, this name gives a clue to one of them. Some describe the songs of the saw-whet as resembling the soft gurgling sounds produced by water flowing from the neck of a bottle, entirely devoid of any rasping or filing quality. Ernest Thompson Seton describes a "dripping water song" of the Acadian owl. He says:

"As I waited in the black woods, I heard a sweet sound of dripping water. I did not know of any spring so near, and in the hot night, it was a glad find. But the sound led me to the bough of an oak tree, where I found its source. Such a soft sweet song: full of delightful suggestion on such a night:

"Tink tink tink tink
"Ta tink ta tink ta tink
"Ta tink tink ta tink tink
"Drink ta tink a drink a drink."

"It was the 'water dripping' song of the saw-whet owl."—Detroit Free Press.

Utah Monument in Honor of Gracful White Gulls

Devoted in sacred memory of the salvation of Utah pioneers' first wheat harvest is a huge monument, bearing the slogan:

The monument, says the United Press, erected on "Temple Square," center of Salt Lake City, is the symbol of regard early settlers carried for the graceful white gulls.

Erected October 1, 1912, on the work of Mahrose Young, grandniece of the famous Mormon pioneer leader, the monument since has signified the story of a great crisis.

In the summer of 1845, less than a year after settlers had reached the Great Salt Lake valley, a vast acreage of wheat had been planted.

A bumper harvest was expected and the pioneers planned to save most of it to furnish other immigrants en route from the East by ocean with seed and flour the next spring. Upon this harvest was based success or failure of the settlement.

Late in May, crickets swept over the fields, leaving no green thing untouched. In vain, men, women and children attempted to stem the tide.

Devotedly they prayed and fasted, unwilling to believe their long journey across the plains was to end in starvation. It was then that thousands of seagulls appeared, alighted on the fields and began to eat the crickets.

They filled their crops, flew away to disgorge the dead insects, then returned to gulp down more. The crop, in part, at least, was saved.

Police Department And Kiwanis Meet

which needed remedy, that the old system of the department of four constables was not adequate to cope with the particular features of crime which then were rampant in that city.

Wanted Police System.

The mayor proposed to establish a police system and thus enlarge the number of policemen and facilities for dealing with crime by the passage of an act in the legislature authorizing an amendment to the charter. It was necessary for me to take a stand in the proposition of a police department. The four constables then were John Sullivan, Michael J. Cahill, grandfather of the present corporation counsel, and Thomas B. Johnston. To say that the city in those days was without representative agencies of crime is not to state with any degree of exactitude the fact. The four constables elected by the people, whom I have named were very superior men. Jack Barry was a character. He must have stood about five feet four inches or five feet, stocky, with a black mustache and a deep bass voice, and like the famous Charlie Barton of Port Ewen, could be said to be "any lady's fancy." He was a man of exactitudes. I had occasion frequently to examine him as a witness in the prosecution of criminals and found him always able to tell the story of a crime without any ifs and ands, usually wholly satisfactory to a jury or to the recorder who was then John Hussey. John Sullivan didn't have the mustache of Barry and was not so dark, but was agile and made a good constable. Michael J. Cahill was very earnest in the work of prosecution, very reliable and a fine citizen and Thomas B. Johnston was such a favorite in the city that there was no withstanding his appeal to the voters on election day. These men as constables in charge of criminal matters set a high standard of public service and efficiency and I look back on my early association with them with great satisfaction and have retained a memory of them which it is very pleasing to revive. John Hussey was city recorder. No finer type of a citizen has ever been chosen in any municipality in the state for the office of recorder. The people appreciated his character as an unusual repressor of crime. I practiced criminal law in his court for several years, both as corporation counsel and for those accused and those prosecuting crime and I must say that he was one of the fairest, most just men in judicial office I ever saw.

Well, a bill was introduced in the legislature of 1890 for the creation of a Police Department and as I said a question came up to me as to what I should do. Thomas J. Murray who was either a constable then or expecting to be a policeman was a friend of mine and asked me to favor the bill and I think I committed myself to the proposition. Of course, the legislature would not have listened to the passage of a police bill for the city unless it was favored by the appropriation power in the city government. That was the common council. Appropriations had to be made and to secure them it was necessary to have a common council favorable to the appropriation. I think that was the reason why Sergeant Thomas J. Murray was anxious to secure my support. I knew from terms of the bill that Mayor Kraft would appoint the police commissioners and that they would have the selection of the policemen. But I concluded that since it was apparent that the bill could not become a law unless it was favored by my friends in the common council, the mayor would take the consistent and consideration in the selection of the non-partisan police body. In this I was mistaken. The mayor appointed Republicans who were members of that faction of the Republican party which was controlled by General Sharpe and they selected the Republican policemen from their ranks which was a rather bitter pill for me to swallow after having made the police legislation possible. But I was young, new at the game and learned the lesson that before you commit yourself to a proposition whether in law or in politics, always be sure that you will escape "the little end of the horn."

I am indebted to the Chief of Police for the following facts relating to the constitution and make-up and activities of the department of Police Service:

First Meeting

"The first meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners was held at the city hall 4:30 p. m. on Wednesday, May 6, 1891. The first Board of Police Commissioners consisted of Mayor John E. Kraft, Ex-officio President of the Board and Commissioners Jacob Chambers, Severin B. Sharpe and John B. Alliger.

The first Chief of Police was Stephen D. Hood, who was appointed as Chief of Police on May 13, 1891. The first policemen were Thomas J. Murray, Thomas E. Cullen, John J. Kierman, James D. McIntyre, William C. Schubert and George Roach, all of whom were appointed on May 13, 1891. On the same day four constables namely, John Barry, John Sullivan, M. J. Cahill and Thomas B. Johnston were assigned to police duty.

All of the above appointments were confirmed by the Board of Police Commissioners on May 15, 1891. On May 16, 1891, Patrolman Michael J. Cahill was assigned to detective duty to take effect June 1, 1891.

On June 2, 1891, under the authority of the Common Council four additional policemen were appointed, Patrick McGeeney, William Vogt, Edwin Shader and George Minor. The salary of the policemen at this time was at the rate of $50 per month.

On June 11, 1891 at 10 a. m. all the newly appointed officers of the police force appeared before the Board in their new uniforms. The uniform outfit of this day was Edward Dreyfus, a well known expert tailor of this city. The uniforms at this time were inspected by the board assisted by Charles Schermerhorn, who was also an expert tailor of the City of Kingston at that time.

Rules and regulations were adopted by the Board of Police Commissioners during the next month. Serious difficulties arose among some of the newly appointed policemen in adjusting themselves to the position. These difficulties were corrected by the removal and resignation of several of the newly appointed officers who were apparently not fitted for the work.

In the year 1892 one additional officer was added to the force by the appointment of Michael J. White as patrolman of the Police Department.

Early Budget

The total budget for the year 1892 amounted to $9,375. On March 10, 1892 Mayor David Kennedy assumed the office of mayor. He appointed John E. Kraft, the former mayor as police commissioner. The board then consisted of the president, David Kennedy, and Commissioners Sharp, Chambers, Kraft and Alliger. The board met once a month and transacted the business of the police department.

On December 12, 1893, the Hon. G. D. E. Hasbrouck, corporation counsel, furnished the board with an opinion on some matters pertaining to the operation of the department and also in relation to their duty of collecting civil penalties. The personnel of the Board of Police Commissioners did not change for several years.

On May 14, 1895, the Chief of Police Stephen D. Hood became secretary of the Board of Police Commissioners by Charter Provision.

In May of that year there was some difference of opinion in the board as to who should ascertain the political status of each member of the police force. The opinion was divided as to whether or not the chief should not do this. It was finally decided that one of the commissioners would do it. Various changes occurred in the personnel of the police department during the next 15 years. Many prominent citizens served in the Board of Police Commissioners. Stephen D. Hood remained chief of police until his death on June 4, 1906. The present chief, James Allen Wood, was appointed on July 7, 1906. The personnel of the department consisted of one chief of police, two detective sergeants of police and 11 patrolmen.

By resolution of the Common Council the driver of the ambulance or patrol car was also assigned to the police department and under its control. The ambulance driver at the time was Simon Wood.

Ordinance Officer. At about this time the Common Council appointed an ordinance officer in the person of Charles Phinney who enforced side-walk and other ordinances in connection with the police department.

In 1915 a Gamewell Police Signal System was installed in the police department. Police headquarters had been reconstructed into a more spacious and suitable place for the transaction of police business. During the early years of the police department various methods were used for transporting prisoners to and from police headquarters through an arrangement made with the local livermen who furnished horses and vehicles for that service. Later a patrol wagon and driver were furnished by the common council. The patrol wagon was referred to by local people as the "Black Maria".

In 1915 the department installed its first automobile equipment which consisted of an Emerson touring car, a Buick manufactured at the plant formerly occupied by the Peckham Plant on Grand street in this city. Shortly afterward all the vehicles of the department were motorized.

In September 1914 a mounted squad was organized for the purpose of covering more territory in the outlying districts. This was maintained for about three years and abandoned.

Present Budget. The budget for the year 1934 was $88,486.60.

The following mayors have served Kingston since May 5, 1891: John E. Kraft, David R. Kennedy, Henry E. Welber, William D. Brincker, James E. Phinney, Morris Block, A. Wesley Thompson, Walter F. Crane, Roscoe Irwin, Palmer Canfield, Jr., Walter P. Crane, Morris Block, Edgar J. Dempsey, Eugene B. Carey, Harry B. Walker, and Conrad J. Heiselman.

On June 4, 1927 the City Hall was destroyed by fire and all city departments moved to the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street where city business was carried on for a period of 23 months while the city hall was being rebuilt. The department returned to the city hall, April 27, 1929.

On September 1, 1931, a modern teletype system was installed in police headquarters. This system gave the police department added facilities for broadcasting alarms and communications. It included a five state hookup. It has been found to be very effective and efficient.

The present strength of the department is one Chief of Police, two Sergeants, and 24 patrolmen. These are divided into squads and are assigned to various duties consisting of regular patrol duty, traffic and motor cycle duty.

Our city comprises 7 1/2 miles of territory and has 116 miles of street area most of which is improved or partially improved.

Large volumes of automobile traffic pass over our streets yearly. The personnel of the present Board of Police Commissioners is a Hon. Conrad J. Heiselman, mayor and president of the Board of Police Commissioners, Dr. W. H. Connelly, Thomas F. Goldrick, Edward P. Kuehn and John N. Cordis.

Good Department. In conclusion I think I may say that the City of Kingston has been remarkably fortunate in the organization and in the personnel of the police department. I knew well indeed, Stephen D. Hood who was the first chief of the department. I had gone to school with him when I was a boy, at New Paltz. He was a lawyer of good standing and of high character and conducted the affairs of his office honestly and correctly during all my observation of his incumbency. I remember his being subject to great influence by a very powerful interest in the city and calling on him for personal counsel to advise him as to what he should do. I told him what the law was and what his responsibilities were and he refused to submit to the pressure and adhered to what he believed to be the law.

You will have noticed that during the last 26 years during which J. Allen Wood has been the chief, that the police service in the City of Kingston has been of a high order, that crime has been repressed, that through the chief and his staff and cooperation in the district attorney's office of Ulster county, the city and the county, too, have been in a large measure free from excess or epidemic of crime. In order that any great organization may function to its maximum, it has got to have at the head of it a man who knows all of the requirements necessary to deal with crime, such as competent subordinates and an efficient patrol contingent. Our city is fortunate in Chief Wood. He possesses the sterling character, the honesty of purpose and a reverence for the inalienability of criminal law which is rarely found and he has inspired his detectives, his sergeants and patrolmen with the same spirit that he himself possesses. It is these things which have made the Police Service of the City of Kingston a thing of which the city ought to be exceedingly proud and for which they should be extremely grateful. We shall be rarely fortunate if we are able in the future to have a Police Service system ordinarily so impeccable as that under which we have lived for the last 26 years.

The anniversary celebration was then brought to a close with the singing of a parting song.

Graduation classes from Iowa colleges numbered 2,900 men and women this year.

With IllustrationsNew Faces in Congress
May Set a Record

Washington, June 22 (P)—When the 76th Congress assembles next January the number of new faces is likely to set a record.

Already a large turnover is assured. This is because of the number of house members who seek to become senators or governors, or who are retiring.

To date 32 new names are certain to be on the roll. How many more is a question that lies with the voters. Each side, as usual, sees it differently.

Many Democrats are confronted by stiff contests for nomination. Republicans predict they will capture between 40 and 50 Democratic seats in November. Representative Snell of New York, party leader, said Democrats now hold 76 normally Republican seats and that many of these would revert to the G. O. P. Democratic leaders scoffed at this estimate.

The Republicans say they expect to pick up seats in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Idaho, Oregon, California, Pennsylvania, and Kentucky. Speaker Rainey disputed Republican claims, estimating his party would not lose more than fifteen of its 300 seats in the present House. The Republicans now have 114.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)
Murdering Triumphant
Larches, Que.—Anna doesn't end any more.
Judge Robillard of the juvenile court advised the city council that he regarded employment of girls on golf courses as "immoral," so the council ordered that all bag toters must be males.
To Scotland He Did Go
Halifax, N. S.—Peter Duncan learned through newspapers that Edinburgh lawyers sought to pay him a legacy left by the mother he had not seen for 25 years. He wrote the attorneys and they sent him $125. Duncan used the money to return to his homeland, there to collect the rest of his legacy.
All he got was a receipt to sign. His share had been $125.

Cap Correctly Called
Greenfield, Mass.—The baggage man dropped the crate and 24,000 bees stormed forth, taking undisputed possession of the railroad station. The police riot squad was called.
That made the solution simple. With the squad was Sergeant Fred Woodward, bee fancier and the man to whom the crate was consigned. His fellow officers let him roundup his property.

Hen-Kicked Husband
Philadelphia—Mrs. Esther Magri so kicked her husband's income right out from under him.
"She comes and kicks my peanut stand over whenever she feels like it," the 64-year-old husband, Leon, said in explaining his $202 arrearage on a support order.
"One more kick out of you," Judge Theodore Rosen warned her, "and you'll go to jail."

Absentee Protection
Camden, N. J.—Charles Judge, 32, barricaded himself in his home, poked a shotgun out the front window and shouted: "I'll shoot anyone who comes near."
To police, Judge insisted he was protecting his wife.
They arrested him, because his wife wasn't home.

Took His Work Lightly
Fairfield, Conn.—Robert F. Forbes, relief worker, painted many a "stop" sign. Then state police arrested him for failing to obey one of his own painted commands.

Nothing New at 92
Middletown, Ohio—W. A. Sinkay, 92, is looking for more means to travel to conquer. Stepping from an airplane, he announced he had used every known American vehicle from the ox car up.

The Bark of the Tree

If the bark did not grow on the tree the tree would not grow. In the first place, the bark does one or two things which are useful but not very important. The outside of it is usually pretty tough, and has become more or less dead (like the outside of our skin), so that things do not hurt it, and it protects the living part of the tree inside. The inside of the bark is the most living part of the tree, we may say; it actually makes the tree. All the growth of the tree in thickness is due to the making of the wood, and it is the soft living part of the inside of the bark that has made all the hardest wood of the biggest and hardest trees. Also, there are channels in the bark through which the sap of the tree runs, in much the same way as the blood runs in our own blood-vessels.

Daniel Boone Was Quiet, Manner, Methodical Here

When out of the thick of the fight Daniel Boone was a quiet, honest, methodical and lovable man, but a poor business man, according to a writer in the Kansas City Star. He either lacked the time or inclination to take out patents on the claims that he made—or perhaps he was more frightened than we would believe and forewent the never-ending conflict of claims to Kentucky land, hundreds of which to this day have not been settled. During his lifetime his fame spread afar. In England at the time he was regarded as a second Robin Hood. He was America's most widely traveled man—let even excepting George Washington—for his tours, always to new places, carried him from New York to Florida and from North Carolina to the Yellowstone valley. He honored seven states by living within their borders and at different times lived under the jurisdiction of seven nations on the same continent.
There can be no doubt, either, that he was one of the most versatile of Americans. During his fourscore and six years he was a warrior, blacksmith, farmer, hunter, trapper, explorer, soldier, Indian, surveyor, sheriff, magistrate, road builder, legislator and world hero. He died at the home of his son, Nathan, at Charlotte, Mo., on September 22, 1820. His wife had died thirteen years earlier. In 1845 their bodies were removed to Frankfort, where a monument was erected to "The Father of Kentucky."

President's War Debt Message Resented By European Nations

Special Dispatch to The Freeman. The British government, notably, has a budget surplus estimated at over $2,000,000, pounds sterling. But where is the international market could that amount of sterling be sold against dollars, with which to pay the United States? The offer of such a sum on the international exchange market would depreciate the pound to such an extent that, instead of getting approximately $250,000,000, the current rate, it is doubtful if half that amount could be realized.

Paris, June 22.—For the first time, the debtor nations of Europe are in substantial agreement on the payments to the United States.

The attitude taken by the French parliament in December, 1932, when it declined to authorize payment of the annuity then due unless there was a promise by the United States of a general revision of the debt agreements, has now been adopted by Great Britain and the other principal European debtors.

President Roosevelt's message to Congress was what determined the British to refuse even a token payment. It had been hoped in London that the President would interpret the Johnson act more liberally, permitting the British treasury to make another token payment without being considered in default. The President, doubtless on the advice of the attorney general, but perhaps also for fear of provoking a clash with Congress, carefully avoided any such interpretation.

What astonished not only the British but all the debtor countries was the failure of the President to make any allusion to the difficulties of transfer. There is no question, of course, of the ability of most of the debtor countries to make their payments in their own national currency in the manner of intergovernmental debts. Continental powers owe England approximately as much as England owes the United States. France, too, is creditor for large amounts. As yet there has been no definite agreement for cancellation of these debts, although all the nations have tacitly agreed not to ignore them.

Birds Eat Bird's Eggs
Egg-eating crows are common the world over. A crow cannot see well, and seems to have no perception of color. In its search for eggs or young birds the crow depends altogether on the sense of touch and taste that are combined with superlative delicacy in its forked tongue. It succeeds both after dark, climbs rocks, stumps, and trees, crawls through the grass, exploring half blindly, touching everything as it goes, until a prevalence of bird-traces warns it to examine carefully spots within reach, and at last it hits upon a nest.—Montreal Herald.

Pine Grew When Clark Landed
One giant pine in Glacier National park was growing when Columbus discovered America and is the largest of its kind in existence. The pine is on McDonald creek, on the west side of the park. It is of the Picea monticola variety and it is in this class that it holds the distinction of being the largest known. It towers 180 feet and its heavily buttressed base is 10 1/2 feet at its greatest diameter. Four feet above the ground its diameter has tapered to slightly less than seven feet.

Chasey, newly appointed superintendent of the Kingston District, will be the guest of honor this evening at a testimonial dinner to be given in Asbury Church, North Long Branch, his boyhood home and where he and his family have been accustomed to spend their summer vacations. Saturday night Dr. Chasey will attend a reunion at the North Long Branch High School.

Use for Radium Detector
The bureau of standards reports that a radium detector is not for use in finding radium deposits in the earth. Radium used in hospitals is contained in minute quantities in hollow needles. These are so small that they are sometimes lost or mislaid. A detector having a small localization chamber is employed in finding the misplaced radium.

Interest Grows In New Tabernacle

CARRIE CRANE SLOAN.

The meetings being held in the Tabernacle corner of Elmendorf street and Wilkwyck avenue by Dr. and Mrs. J. Howard Sloan are increasing in interest and attendance each night.

Mrs. Sloan has been in evangelistic work for 25 years and has been heard in the leading churches and camp meetings from ocean to ocean. Mrs. Ruth Harris Bennett is the soloist and song leader. Mrs. Bennett was formerly Ruth Harris and is known in the city and has sung at Ocean Grove and other large religious gathering places over the country.

The meetings are held under the auspices of the Church of the Nazarene, the Rev. William Godsey, pastor.

Services each evening are at 8 o'clock and three services on Sunday 11 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. On Sunday afternoon the Tabernacle will be dedicated by Dr. J. Howard Sloan, district superintendent of New York District Church of the Nazarene.

Special music will be a feature of the Sabbath services. Miss Mary Olson of Brooklyn will be present and sing.

Queens for a Day

Albania, the Balkan state ruled by King Zog, is a quaint mixture of the new and the old. The inhabitants still cling to their picturesque marriage customs. Young girls are not allowed out of their mother's sight until they are betrothed, but when they are officially engaged they may queen it for a day or two over all their circle. Seated on a sort of throne they receive the homage and gifts of relations and friends. On the day of the wedding the bridegroom and the best man and friends form a procession and call for the bride. They take her heavily veiled, to church, while her parents remain at home. The girl usually rides on a horse led by the best man, and to keep up the pretense of capture the men discharge guns as they march along singing.—London Tit-Bits.

School Vacations

School vacations in the South Temperate zone are usually different from those in this country. For instance, in Australia, the Christmas vacation is the summer vacation. It begins a week before Christmas day and lasts from 25 to 35 days. There is a vacation of two weeks in May, which is a winter month, and usually one week in August or September. In Argentina the summer vacation extends from the thirtieth of November to the first Monday in March.

Shoddy

During the Civil war, some of the soldiers' uniforms were made of shoddy. The term then came into general use for describing anything that was inferior or adulterated.

One-Word Chorus

"Amen" is the last word in the Bible which appears in the preceding verse; in used once more in the Book of the Revelation as a synonym for "term and true," and once by St. Paul in his second letter to the Corinthians, where he couples it with an affirmative, "Yea, and Amen." It occurs nowhere else, and Christ never uses it in the gospels. It comes straight from the Hebrew, and its significance is "truly," "verily," "So it is really," "It is so in very truth," "This." All the churches, Roman, Greek, English, Nonconformist, use it. Jews and Mohammedans, say "Amen." There has been controversy as to its proper pronunciation. The dictionaries give "a men," but in public worship the word, usually when spoken, and always when sung, is pronounced "ah-men." Handel wrote a chorus in which no other word occurs, and a seventh Amen is commonly sung in churches at the close of a service.—London Tit-Bits.

"Kangaroo" Man

The jumping mice found principally in North America are a miniature form of kangaroos, at any rate their form of locomotion and their general outline resemble the kangaroos. The body and head are only about three inches long and the tail another five, put these may creatures can jump from 8 to 15 feet at a bound. They are nocturnal in their habits, being seen in the daytime only rarely. They inhabit fields and forests, where they feed largely on seeds.

Red-Shouldered Hawk

The red-shouldered hawk is a powerful bird, about a foot and a half long, dark brown above, the feathers edged with rusty buff, with bright chestnut patches on the shoulders. The wings and dark tail are barred with white, so are the rusty buff underparts, and the light throat has dark streaks. This larger relative of the red-shouldered hawk, the red-tailed hawk, sharing with it the hatred of all but the most unflinching farmers.

Dade county, Georgia, is so cut off from the remainder of the state by towering Lookout mountain that all of its commercial and social contacts are with adjacent Tennessee.

The city of Atlanta, Ga., at first was named Marthasville in honor of Martha Lumpkin, daughter of an early governor.

The Name "Hippopotamus"

The name "hippopotamus" comes from the Greek and means "river-horse". The body of the hip- po is almost bare of hair but it has a few bristles scattered over it. The great fleshy lips and snout of the animal are provided with quite long bristles which play an important part in the animal's enjoyment of his food. In fact as he browses about and draws his food into his cavernous maw, he shows the same appreciation of his dinner that a hungry hog does. He smacks his lips and drools and grunts in a way that shows he doesn't belong to the class of beings that nothing pleases in the way of eatables. His bristles just tickle his palate. In fact the hippo is a good example of contentment and solid satisfaction on a large scale.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Sunshine Recorder

A sunshine recorder is an instru- ment for indicating the duration of sunshine. One form is a spherical lens, whose focus moves with the sun and leaves a scorched path on a curved strip of paper. Another form is a dark chamber, in which the rays, admitted through a minute hole, trace a line photographically on sensitized paper.

Ten Overworked Words.

Ten words make up 25 per cent of our ordinary speech, say the lexicog- raphers. They are: "The, of, and, to, a, in, that, it, is, I." Further, they estimate that the average person's active vocabulary, exclusive of proper names, does not exceed 3,000 words! The unabridged dictionary contains more than 400,000 words.

Excelsior Hose Again Wins First Prize

For Biggest and Best Company Ap- pearing in Line at Annual Parade of Hudson Valley Volunteer Fire- men.

For the fifth consecutive year the members of Excelsior Hose Com- pany, No. 4, of Kingston, came home with the first prize awarded by the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association for the biggest and best company appearing in line at the annual parade. Excelsior have come to make this an annual event. In addition Excelsior have won the State Convention prize for three years.

When the boys from Higginville marched before the reviewing stand Thursday at Saugerties 124 men were in line, perhaps a few had seen their best gal on the sidelines and dropped out for a chat but that was the number which lined up when the parade started and that is the number which Foreman William B. Martin attempted to keep in line.

The handsome cup which Ex- celsior won will be on display in the window of Flanagan's Men's furnishing store on Wall street.

Following the parade Washington Hook and Ladder held open house at their engine rooms and the boys of Excelsior Hose Company were royally entertained as only firemen can entertain.

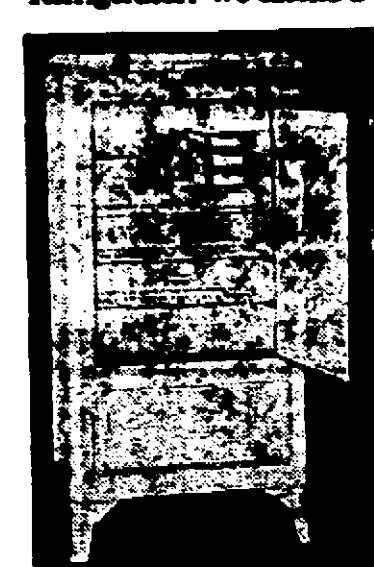

Later in the evening Excelsior returned to Kingston and headed by Fire Chief Murphy and the fire com- missioners they paraded to the en- gine house on Hurley avenue where the festivities were continued.

Texas Originally "Tejas,"
Under Six Nation's Flag

What the world now knows as "Texas" was originally San Francisco de los Tejas, "Tejas" being the name of a tribe of Indians. The Spanish pronunciation was without the "s" being attached to "Tejas," the change being attributed to Capt. Alonso de Leon. The word itself means "friends," says the Houston Post.

The battle of San Jacinto, fought on April 21, 1836, transferred Texas from Mexico to—right there the historian, if not very careful, is liable to stumble. Texas was not transferred to another sovereignty, but assumed the role of a nation on her own account. It was a transfer from autocracy to democracy, for Mexico at that time was under a dictatorship of an offensive sort.

The Texas republic sent ambassadors to foreign courts and in all ways comporting itself as a befitting a responsible sovereignty.

By decree of her people Texas took membership in the American Union, and today has two senators and twenty-one representatives in the congress at Washington.

Dating from the arrival of La Salle in February, 1685, Texas has paid allegiance to the flags of six nations. The Illinois of France flying over La Salle's fort at Matagorda were replaced by the banner of Castile and Aragon. Then came Mexico's independence of Spain, and this was followed by the independence of Texas. In 1854 Texas voluntarily joined the American Union. In 1861 Texas seceded from the Union and attached itself to the Southern Confederacy, and when the latter failed in 1865, resumed its place in the American Union.

Picture of World Seen in N. S. Coal District

One of the most interesting and complete geological pictures on the continent is to be seen in the Joggins coal district of Cumberland county, Nova Scotia, according to the natural resources department of the Canadian National railways. This picture is found in the carboniferous formation which occurs in the sea cliffs in this district. The formation extends in unbroken order for a distance of about ten miles. The coal measures are full of interesting markings and structures that show the conditions under which they accumulated.

Fossil tree stumps, rooted in place and erect although enveloped in sand and turned to stone mark the sites of coal forests of early stages of geological history. Skeletons of reptiles in some of the stumps show that primitive lizards found refuge in the hollow trunks. Footmarks on the surface of mud layers, now completely indurated, relegate these creatures to the mud flats of long ago. Raindrop pits tell of passing showers and cracks bespeak periods of sunshine during the period when the deposits were in the making. Geologists from all over the world have visited these deposits and fossils from the district are found in nearly all of the larger museums.

How One State Treated Its Insane Back in 1879

The following is from a report on the findings of a committee which studied the conditions of insane patients in one state in 1879:

"In 1879 in this state 333 insane unable to care for themselves, a burden to their families and their communities, were housed in the jails and poorhouses of the state and living under conditions as horrifying as any you could picture.

"A survey disclosed instances of raving maniacs chained to the walls of cells in jails. Women were found in filthy cells not as good as the pens in which you house your hogs, with loose straw for beds, and these places were attended to in much the same way as were the barns of that period; that is, they were cleaned out only when the filth demanded such a proceeding.

"In the cellars and basements of these jails and poorhouses staples had been driven into the walls. Irons were placed on the legs of the unfortunates and they were fastened with chains to these staples. So fearful were they who pretended to minister to the physical needs of these insane that they fed them as you have seen animals fed in the circus, but not so well.

"The food was thrust through little holes or gratings. While these unfortunates were helpless and for the most part harmless, the ignorance of the times subjected them to living conditions so cruel that the mere recital causes us to shudder and to bemoan the fact that there should have been so dark a page in the state's treatment of unfortunates."

Cod of 300 Million Years

Although the codfish is considered a stupid fellow, he is not nearly as much of a bonehead as his predecessors of Devonian times. The present-day cod has 138 bones of various kinds in his head, whereas some of the fish that swam the seas 300,000,000 years ago had more than 150.

These data are pertinent to an exhibit of the history of skulls—human, fish and otherwise in the American Museum of Natural History and deals with the difference in construction between the skull of the codfish and of human beings.

The exhibit shows the skull of the cod with 138 bones, explained a staff assistant in comparative anatomy. In man the number is reduced to twenty-eight. As we progress from primitive to specialized vertebrates the number of original skull elements is reduced, while the remaining ones become highly differentiated.

This reduction in skull bones has been observed in all of the great groups of vertebrates as we follow the changes through the ages. Some of the bones gradually become very small and disappear, as for example, the bones covering the gills, while others, though ever increasing in size, fuse with their fellows of the opposite side, as in the case of the main bones of the forehead of the skull.

Pate de Foie Gras

Pate de foie gras, as is popularly known, is the French name for goose liver, or, more specifically, the paste made from goose livers, written G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. What is not commonly known is the cruel treatment to which the geese is usually subjected in the preparation of this table delicacy. The bird is plucked to a board by having its wings and legs fastened in such a manner that it cannot move. It is then placed before a fire of insistent heat to roast it, but warm enough to make it uncomfortable. Then begins a program of forced feeding, the result of which, coupled with lack of exercise, causes fatty degeneration of the liver, which finally enlarges to such an extent that the goose dies.

New York, June 22 (AP)—The market today was somewhat of a somnolent condition and prices were irregularly lower during the greater part of the session.

Yale Crews Win Decisive Victories

Regatta Course, New London, Conn., June 22 (AP)—The presence of President Roosevelt, riding on the foredeck of the referee's launch, failed to inspire his son and the rest of the oarsmen of his Alma Mater, Harvard, as Yale swept to decisive victory in the freshman and junior varsity race opening the 72nd regatta this morning.

His son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., a stalwart, 160 pound youngster, six feet, four inches tall, pulled a magnificent four in the Harvard shell, but the Elis won the opening two miles brush by slightly better than a length in something of an upset.

Then Yale's favored junior varsity, taking the lead at the half mile mark, rowed steadily away from Harvard's jayvees to win by three full lengths.

It was a triumphant day for the President, regardless of which crews won, for his own graduation from Harvard many years ago was topped earlier this week by an honorary degree from Yale bringing him into the Eli fold just in time to share the hilarity of the double victory, preliminary to the four mile varsity classic this evening.

Sheep Everywhere

Before and After Shearing.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

SHEEP owners of the United States produce about $50,000,000 pounds of wool annually, or enough to supply each inhabitant of this country with a wool garment weighing nearly three pounds.

The lowly sheep, from which comes the world's yearly wool supply of slightly less than three and a third billion pounds, is no respecter of persons or geography. A meeting of all the world's wool growers would reveal a motley gathering of all creeds and colors, from Icelanders to South Africans, from Canadians to Argentinians, from Siberians to Indians. There also would be present natives of many islands of the seas.

The sheep-raising industry is pretty well confined to the temperate zones, however, though some flocks graze near the Equator in high altitudes, and others are found in the Arctic, where there is sufficient forage.

The world's sheep population is more than 500,000,000—a quarter as great as the human population. Australia, although a comparative youngster in the wool industry, is the world's leading wool producer. India and China are the outstanding sheep countries of Asia. Argentina and Uruguay have the heaviest sheep population in South America. The greatest concentration of sheep herds in Africa is along the Mediterranean coastal zone from Gibraltar to Tunisia, and in South Africa. Every country of Europe raises sheep, but in Norway, Sweden and Finland there are few flocks, scattered over wide areas. The United States, with upwards of 50,000,000 head of sheep, is the only country in North America that has taken to wool growing in a big way.

Where America's Sheep Are.

About four-fifths of the sheep in the United States graze in the mountains and on the plateaus and plains west of the Mississippi river. Texas, which has been dubbed the "Cotton State" and the "Sulphur State" because of its supremacy in the production of these commodities, also has earned the right to be called the "Wool State." In 1932, its contribution to the United States' pile of wool was about 57,000,000 pounds, or about one-sixth of the wool produced in this country. Montana, whose sheep gave up more than $2,000,000,000 pounds in the same year, ranked next to the Lone Star state, with Wyoming, Oregon, Utah, California, New Mexico, Idaho, and Ohio, each of which produced more than 15,000,000 pounds, following in the order named.

As in the case of cotton, historians and naturalists have been stumped by the query, "when and where was wool first used?" Sheep and wool are mentioned in the Bible and it is known that the Romans practiced sheep breeding. Some of their prize animals were jackets to protect the fleece. Shortly after the beginning of the Christian era an Italian took several sheep from Italy to Spain to breed them with the native merino sheep. Incidentally, the merino sheep produce the finest of wools, and have been bred with many other inferior sheep to improve the latter's fleece.

The growth of the wool industry in the United States has been phenomenal. Two years after Capt. John Smith and his followers landed on the Virginia coast the first sheep were introduced into America at their settlement. Twenty-one years later a shipment of the fleecy animals from Europe was landed on the Massachusetts coast. Indians' appetites, predatory animals and severe winters made serious inroads on the colonial flocks, so most of the animals were kept inside town walls, on islands, and on peninsulas fenced off from the mainland. While Indians no longer are a menace to wool growers, predatory animals, parasites, and poisonous plants still cause great losses to the industry.

Growth of the Wool Industry.

As cotton clothed the colonies of the South, wool clothed those of the North. Private houses then were America's woolen factories. The American wool trade began when sheep-owning families exchanged their wool and surplus homespun for other commodities. With the increase in colonial population the demand for wool cloth rose and the federal government as well as local governments encouraged wool growing.

By 1810, just two centuries after the sheep arrived from England, there

Prince of Wales Works Hard at Age of 40

London, June 22 (AP)—He doesn't look it, but the Prince of Wales is 40 years old tomorrow.

Buasier than ever and graver of mien, the heir to the throne of the British Empire does not get much relaxation these days. Content with his modest bachelor apartments at St. James Palace and his country place at Sandringham, he has devoted himself in recent months to the campaign for removing slums throughout the British Isles.

The only way in or out is through two heavy swinging bronze doors in one of which is a secret panel which hides the combination lock to the whole place.

"My dear," said the host to his wife

"But," said the wife, "I can't possi-

"Certainly you can't put them out,"

Junior League In Spacious Quarters

Those who on Thursday afternoon visited the Junior League's new headquarters for their Child Welfare Clinic in the municipal building, and especially those who happened to remember the place as the temporary council room after the burning of the city hall, found a marked change and an ideal place for the clinic.

The work of finishing the present location into three attractive rooms has been done by the CWA and its successor the TERA. And those who did the work were quite too interested in the objective—healthier babies and mothers in Kingston—to spend any time looking at the clock. They wanted to make a good job and did.

The walls and ceilings of beaver board and the partitions, all neatly paneled and painted a cheery cream color, now form three convenient rooms. The large waiting room, where later various conferences may be held in connection with the Child Welfare Work, has three large windows on the side and one at the end, making for sunlight and air, even on such a warm day as Thursday was.

The examining room also is spacious and there is plenty of sunshine and air from two large windows. Here there is a large sink with hot and cold running water, a closet for supplies and necessary shelving, conveniently placed.

Adjoining the examining room is a dressing room with two compartments which is necessary in pre-natal work.

The entire place is electric lighted and heated, amply from the city's central heating plant, even to the dressing room. In one corner of the waiting room are large cupboards for the storing away of supplies and cleaning equipment, and the desk and files used by Miss Cassidy, the Junior League nurse, are in this room. So are the tiny locker-like shelves where the babies' garments are placed during examinations.

With the funds realized from the Junior League play, "Jack and the Beanstalk," the best quality linoleum of neutral but harmonizing colors has been laid in all rooms.

The pretty cream-colored curtains and additional wicker furniture were the gift of Mrs. J. G. M. Hilton of Saugerties, and Miss Florence Cordis, a member of the League, gave the window awnings and shades.

Mrs. Leon Chambers contributed the painting of the chairs—all an attractive blue which looks so well with the cream-colored walls, the two colors predominating also in the linoleum.

On May 28, all clinic equipment was moved to the new rooms, and all activities of the clinic have been carried on there since the first of June.

On Thursday afternoon, when the rooms were open for inspection to the community and some especially invited guests, vases and baskets of delphinium and other harmonizing flowers decorated the rooms.

Mrs. Leon Chambers, the new president, and members of the Junior League and Miss Cassidy, the nurse, received the visitors who were many, and during the afternoon fruit punch, lemon tea and cake were served, after the guests had inspected the rooms.

Those who had been especially invited to the formal opening of the clinic included Mayor Hesselman, the clinic's consulting board, Dr. Mark O'Meara, Dr. Mary Gage-Dar, Dr. Sanford, Dr. Kroom and Dr. Bibb, each of whom have charge of the clinical work; members of the common council, Mr. Hogeboom, of the relief organization; Miss Allen, superintendent of the Kingston Hospital; Sister Berenice, superintendent of the Benedictine Hospital; Dr. Hallway of Keshenbec, assistant to Dr. Bibb; Miss Murphy, the tuberculosis nurse; Mrs. Rice, of the Y. W. C. A.; Mr. Schoonmaker, of the Y. M. C. A.; Mrs. Doremus, of the State Charities Aid Association; Mrs. O'Neill, nurse of the board of health; Mrs. K. E. Johnson, social worker of the Catholic Charities; Miss Humle, social worker of the TERA; all cooperating persons and organizations with the Junior League.

It is interesting to note that in June, 1934, the cases on hand at the clinic are 226 infants, 116 pre-school children, 20 pre-natal cases, making a total to date of 352.

The regular clinics are two baby clinics a month, on the second and fourth Wednesday afternoons, beginning at 2 o'clock; two pre-natal clinics a month, and two mother and baby conferences a month.

The members of the Junior League had reason for their rejoicing over their new headquarters, where their work can broaden out and where the locality—both Broadway and Hasbrouck busses pass near the clinic—is so much more convenient for mothers and their children.

Alexandre Dumas Holds

Record as Book Writer

Alexandre Dumas the Elder (1802-1870), French dramatist and novelist, was the most prolific author of all times, notes G. R. Turner in the Kingston City Times. One thousand two hundred volumes are filled with his published writings, an average of one volume every twelve days for forty years. In one year alone, 1845, his facile pen produced not only sixty volumes, but in addition he found time to write four newspaper serials and to dramatize all the plays for a theater under his management.

So voluminous was this great Frenchman's literary output that often he has been criticized on the grounds that he employed less successful authors to write under his name. But, although he often collaborated with others, not a shred of evidence exists to prove that he was aided by ghost writers. His fame justly rests on his highly creative intellect and his amazing industry.

An interesting anecdote, in this connection, is illustrative of Dumas' ability to concentrate always upon something new. On a certain occasion, after an illness, he was convalescing in a little Swiss village. A book in the library of his host absorbed his interest and he read it avidly from cover to cover. Curious to learn who wrote it, he turned to the title page and learned, to his amazement, that he himself was the author!

Herzog-Mohawk Combination Blanks Crystal Beauty Shoppe, 3-0

A near pitching performance by Ken Hornbeck and a timely single by "Red" Newell combined to give the Herzog-Mohawk combination a 3-0 victory over the Crystal Beauty Shoppe in the first game of the Uptown Industrial League game at the Athletic Field. Hornbeck held the lightly fouled Crystal batters in check with six widely scattered singles and was in trouble only twice. The shutout victory was the first to date in the league. The game was by far the best played of the season.

Mike Veltri, the beautiful Beauty Shoppe moundman, outpitched Hornbeck in the matter of baselines, yielding only four, but one had fanning cost him the game. Veltri and Hornbeck each fanned five batters. Art Jansen reached first on a fielder's choice, with two down in the first inning, and scored on Flanagan's single and a bad throw from the outfield to give the combination nine a marker in the first stanza.

Veltri was shaky in the third frame when Jansen singled and he hit Steigewald. K. Hornbeck got a life on Ascenzo's misfire and Newell's sharp single through short drove across the last two runs for the winners.

The Crystal Shoppe put runners on second and third in the fifth inning as the result of Hattagino's one-timer and fielder's choice but Marabell ended the inning with a long fly to Jansen in left field.

Again in the sixth the Beauty Shoppe threatened when Ascenzo and Francello rapped successive singles and Francello stole second putting men on second and third. This time a pinch hitter, Marrello, failed when he drove an easy tap to Hornbeck.

Newell with a double and single was the only player to hit safely more than once. Ascenzo, despite his two errors, made several beautiful stops at shortstop for the Beauty Shoppe outfield.

Speidermann Instead Of Allen, Brostoff Anxious To Trim Leone

Artie Speidermann, a featherweight who has boxed the best of them in his class, not excluding Kid Chocolate, the deposed champion, with whom he went 10 rounds to lose on a decision, will be the opponent of Julie Katz at the Municipal Auditorium, Friday night, June 29, for the American Legion welfare fund.

Speidermann will appear in place of Skippy Allen, rough and ready little Irishman, who was injured in training at the Pioneer gym, 44th street, New York city, yesterday. Allen was cut under the eye in a sparring match. The cut proved of sufficient severity to keep him out of the ring for more than a week, thus doing him out of his chance at Katz.

Artie Is Happy.

The mishap was a big disappointment to Allen, who has been waiting for a crack at the two-time Golden Gloves champion, but a happy occurrence to Speidermann, who claims he can beat either Allen or Katz and will be out to prove his contention a week from tonight. "I've fought 'em all, barring none, even Chocolate, and I guess Katz isn't any tougher than the old champ," said Speidermann at the Pioneer yesterday. "Julie has a swelled head I guess since he came into the pro ranks after winning two Golden Gloves titles. Maybe he should have, but winning over a bunch of amateurs ain't no hot. I guess I can bump him off without much trouble."

So what Artie thinks of Katz—just another little batter who

Brostoff Anxious to Win

Katz and Speidermann are booked for eight rounds in one of the two-star features. The other will bring together the sensational Joe Leone, one of New York's best lightweights, and Benny Brostoff, a veteran who has seen action with the best. Only last night he fought Vittorio Tamagno, Italian favorite, who made his debut in America at Ft. Hamilton Armory. The two put on a "whole of a strap," according to reports of the bout, which topped the card. Brostoff having to surrender his chances after the fifth round because of a cut over his left eye.

That Brostoff will be able to fight in Kingston was assured by a telegram from his manager, Moe Flescher, this morning. "Brostoff O. K. for match June 29. Cut will be healed by that time," was the message. Benny is anxious for another chance at Tamagno and hopes a victory over Leone will set him in line for it. It surely should for Joe is a boy with a good reputation, having won 64 fights out of 71.

The rest of the card will be announced Saturday. Indications are that the supporters will be just as attracted as the two features which should give lots of action.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

An Introduction.

Forward: Covering the training camps from June 1-6, including bridge with Hal Sims—covering open golf championship at Merion, including golf with Bobby Jones at Pine Valley—recovering training camps and then the light—covering Cunningham-Eastman records at Princeton—three days and nights of golf and touring with Max Baer—average for 22 nights, 3 hours of sleep.

Let others sing of brunettes, or of blondes with golden hair; Let others sing of roses and of moonlight on the wall; Let hands ladle their lyric odes to sunsets, more than fair; Or rip off rustic roundels where mystic woodlands call; But when the twilight gathers in, and eerie shadows creep, I'd like to toss a deathless song—a chorale gem to—SLEEP. Yes, Homer sang of Helen and the glamour that was Troy—And Shelley sang of skylarks, with their vocal chords aflame; To Keats the magic nightingale, or Grecian urn, brought joy, While Dante took a shot at Hell to gain immortal fame; I'd rather read Gray's Elegy, so peaceful and so deep, About the churchyard and the graves—and men who were asleep. Sunrise upon the purple hills—blue eyes and rose-red lips—Star dust upon the lanes of June—the romance of the moon—Soft arms that necklace memories—the sea and all its ships— I know a better theme than these to earn a deathless tune— Greater than glory, love and gold—beyond time's endless sweep— I sing of life's immortal gift—I lift my song to SLEEP!

The Next Stand.

Invading athletes for the National College A. A. championships this week-end at Los Angeles have only this job to face—stop Southern California, Stanford and California.

And yet it might be mentioned here and now that California track and field teams are facing no mop-up all along the line.

They will find Cunningham and Bonthon on hand to look after the mile, and possibly Bonthon for the half-mile or 800 meter run.

They will also find a young man by the name of Torrance, from L. S. U. to match Lyman of Stanford in the shot put. Torrance, who is ten pounds larger than Carnera, with a much more athletic turn, may pass pounds and Carnera, with a 16-pound shot—not a football.

There will be also Hardin of L. S. U. and one or two more Louisiana Tigers in the javelin and the hurdles who will be heard from in distinctively southern accents—accents from the deep South.

Stanford, Southern California and California will in turn put on a state civil war, which will split up many points.

This big show will be followed by the A. A. U. championships at Milwaukee next week, another stirring pageant of power, speed and skill, thus adding to bewildered Time's struggles to conserve its split seconds and its big inches. The Old Scythe should have several more notches in its sweeping blade before the next fortnight is over.

The Harvard Yale Race.

It has been some time since Ed Leader and his Yale crew have taken Harvard's rowing measure. A few weeks ago the evidence was strong that a Blue star would be hung today in the sky of a June twilight, but there is no such certainty now. Harvard has based her rowing campaign all spring on a four-mile race, and Harvard has a pretty good crew ready for this occasion.

Ed Leader happens to be one of the best coaches and conditioners that any sport carries and the Blue eight also will be above the average. All of which indicates one of the best races the Crimson and the Blue have rowed in some time. There is a good chance for a spectacular finish where Yale's greater speed should have a slight edge.

Max Baer as a Gaffer.

No small part of the answer to Max Baer's ability as a fighter can be told in three words—his golf swing.

This opinion may bring on a sarcastic yodel from the old-timers, but it happens to be true.

If there is one thing a good golf swing demands more than anything else in all sport it is complete coordination—coordination that runs from the feet to the hands, wrists, arms, knees, hips, body, shoulders, neck, and the old dome of thought. They all blend—or you call for a niblick or another ball.

Max Baer has had no great amount of time to give to golf. He has played here and there, whenever he had the chance. Yet he has a golf swing, which could soon be carried into the 70's.

Which is to say that he looks like a good golfer. He has a good left side body turn, a good left arm swing—the main fundamentals—which apparently came to him naturally.

He played around 80 and 81 with only a few rounds under his belt. One answer is that he never tense or tightened up. You won't find him steering any shots, no matter what the hazard ahead may be. He still takes his cut at the ball—his natural swing.

We have a standing engagement for a round of golf after each of his fights.

"Don't forget that round in New York," he said at Asbury Park, "after I've knocked out Carnera."

Getting back to the golf swing, coordination and Baer's punching ability—they all run together.

When he throws a punch there is perfect coordination from hands, arms and body. They all work together. This accounts not only for the speed of his punches, but also for the force at impact, where nothing is held back. He lets 'em go—where nature can take its course.

LENAHAN IS CAPTAIN

Because of business reasons, Chick Miller has resigned as captain of the St. Remy A. C. Matt Lenahan of Kingston has been chosen to take his place and it is hoped that under his guidance on the field, the team will play favorably, satisfying the fans who patronize the games at the village diamond. Lenahan will lead his team for the first time Sunday against the Milton Farmers. Starting time of the game is 3 o'clock. Sam Barnett will continue as manager of the St. Remy club.

It Changes Color

The ermine, whose fur is so highly prized and priced, is only white in the winter; in the summer it is reddish-brown above and white beneath—and we know it as the stoat. "Dress" This little animal changes the color of its coat for the cold weather, presumably so that it shall be less easily seen against a snowy background, and the farther north it lives, the whiter its fur becomes. It is found in the Arctic and temperate regions of both Europe and North America; but the eagerly sought purest white pelts are only obtained in the extreme North.—Answers Magazine.

Riding to Hounds

Riding to hounds in pursuit of the elusive and wily red fox is an outdoor sport older than the nation. It has been practiced in Maryland and the Virginia since their establishment as communities but only in recent years has it reached the Middle West. It is a sport that requires considerable outlay in the maintenance of stables, kennels and riding grounds and for this reason is restricted to a group of outdoor enthusiasts whose pocket books can stand the strain.

Two holidays that are observed the world over are Christmas and New Year's.

Launch Move To Oust Assessor

stipulation of facts was entered into and the matter was submitted to the attorney general for his determination as to whether a court action should be brought. From the statements made by Mr. Leary in all probabilities an order will be granted permitting the bringing of an action. So that even the facts will be tried out in court before a court and jury.

Mr. Leary stated that a similar action has been taken in another town, a hearing had been held before the attorney general and in that action which seemed identical with the one action leave had been given to bring an action although up to the present time no action had been commenced. Whether an action will be brought in that town remains to be seen.

Mr. Every contends that since 1909 he has been a resident of the town of Olive and that since November 1921 he has been an assessor of the town and that since December 7, 1921, he has been the owner of an undivided one-half interest in real property in the town located at Boiceville upon which he has resided with his wife, Minnie. Mr. Every explained to the attorney general that in 1921 his wife died and he had a half interest in the homestead of her parents but that he did not know it was necessary to record that deed. The deed was offered in evidence. It was filed on June 14, 1934, at 4:25 p. m. in the office of the county clerk. The present action was commenced on June 11.

Contention Of Petitioner
Mr. Every stated the contention of petitioner. He said that Mr. Every was not qualified under the law to become an assessor on January 1, 1934 because he was not the owner of property at that time in the meaning of the law. He did not dispute the other facts that Mr. Every had previously to the law being amended in 1933 been a qualified assessor since his name appeared on the assessment roll or that fact that he owned a half interest in the property although he stated that he did not wish to comment on the deed which was offered showing that Mr. Every had owned a half interest in the property since 1921. He said he could not tell then whether the deed was really old as it appeared or whether it had been aged.

Mr. Flemming for defendant argued that Mr. Every had been a qualified assessor prior to his present term without any question and that under the law as it existed in November of 1933, Mr. Every was a qualified candidate in that his name appeared on the assessment roll. That was all that the then existing law required. Mr. Every having complied with the law as it existed then was duly elected to the office of assessor. On January 1 he was sworn in after receiving a certificate of election and had entered upon the discharge of his duties and at the present time the assessments of the town have been practically completed. Mr. Flemming held that even though there had been an amendment passed last year it did not become effective until January 1, 1934, so that it could not have any bearing on the qualifications of a candidate at the 1933 election. Having been qualified for a candidate at the fall election in 1933 and having been duly elected and a certificate of election issued he held that Mr. Every was qualified to hold the office. Any statute changing the qualifications of a candidate which became effective on January 1, 1934, he held could not affect or change the qualifications required of a candidate the previous year. Mr. Flemming contended that Mr. Every did qualify at the 1933 election and having qualified then and been elected he held that he was legally elected to the office and was legally acting. In any event he said there had been no challenge of Mr. Every's right to the office until in June and in that event Mr. Every was de facto assessor and his acts were legal ones and furthermore on June 14 he had become qualified under the law which became effective January 1, 1934, and now was legally qualified for the office.

Had Written An Opinion.

During an informal discussion of the matter Mr. Leary stated that he had written an opinion on the qualifications for town officers had come up and when the law was amended the attorney general's office had written an opinion which had had some circulation in the state although perhaps not enough to make it generally familiar among candidates. That opinion called attention to the fact that effective January 1, 1934, a town officer must be an owner of record of real property in the town and the opinion in effect warned candidates to qualify before becoming a candidate in the 1933 fall election. Mr. Groves and Mr. Flemming did not agree with this contention. They held that all that was required of a candidate at the 1933 fall election was to qualify with the old then existing law which required a candidate to be on the assessment roll.

In submitting the question it was stipulated that Mr. Every had been a resident of the town, had held the office of assessor since 1921 and that his name had appeared on the assessment roll. It was agreed that in the fall of 1933 Mr. Every was the owner of real property with his wife in the town and that his name as such appears on the assessment roll; that he was elected in 1933, received a certificate of election and took the oath of office and entered on his duties; that on January 1, 1934, the conveyance of this real property from his wife to him was not of record although it had been dated December 4, 1921. It was stipulated that it was acknowledged and recorded in the office of the county clerk on June 14, 1934.

Holds Mr. Every Qualified.

In closing Mr. Flemming stated that prior to 1934 Mr. Every had been qualified to act and that the new law which became effective on January 1, 1934, requiring a record of ownership had no application to the present case since Mr. Every had been qualified at his election in 1933. He held that the law existing at the time of the election governed the case and that any law which became effective at a sub-
